A GUIDE TO HOUSE FURNISHING.

OETZMANN & CO.,

67, 69, 71, 73, 75, 77 & 79, HAMPSTEAD ROAD; 146, 148, 150 & 152, DRUMMOND STREET;
15, WILLIAM STREET; and Nos. 1 to 34, EAGLE PLACE, LONDON.

FACTORIES:—ALBION WORKS, DRUMMOND STREET, and EAGLE WORKS, HAMPSTEAD ROAD.

OETZMANN & CO., in presenting this ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, "A Guide to House Furnishing," beg to say that the Illustrations represent only a small portion of their Stock, and give a very inadequate idea of its magnitude. An immense assortment of every description of Goods required for the complete furnishing of a House of any class will always be found on view in their spacious Show Rooms and Warehouses, extending to a depth of 255 feet and a width of 274 feet. By acquiring the immense range of premises known as the Eagle Brewery, rebuilding and adding the same to their Show Rooms, it is now one of the largest Furnishing Establishments in the world. The goods are conveniently arranged in separate Departments, all communicating, and a personal visit of inspection is respectfully solicited as affording a better opportunity of comparison and choice.

OETZMANN & Co. have also recently acquired extensive additional premises which previously intersected their Show Rooms; this, besides affording increased space for the display of the various furnishings and decorations arranged in what is termed "Specimen Rooms," greatly facilitates the easy access of customers to all Departments.

Sketches by our own Draughtsmen on the premises of any article not represented in this Catalogue, or designs to meet special requirements, with quotations for same, will be forwarded post free on application.

OETZMANN & Co. take this opportunity of tendering their sincere acknowledgments to their Patrons, amongst whom they have the honour of including Her Majesty and other Members of the Royal Family, the Nobility, Clergy, and the principal County Families, several of the Foreign Courts, our own and Foreign Government Departments, Public Companies, Clubs, Hotels, &c., for the large and constantly increasing amount of patronage (their returns having more than doubled during the last few years) received by the Firm since their commencement in 1848, and beg to assure them that the same system of business, to which they attribute their great success, will be strictly adhered to—of selling only such goods as are of sterling quality, and at the smallest possible profit, relying upon the immense returns this system has secured to them for their remuneration. Manufacturing largely, with all the latest improvements, they are enabled to guarantee the quality of materials used and the workmanship, at the lowest possible cost of production; and those goods which OETZMANN & Co. do not themselves manufacture are purchased for Cash only of the best Manufacturers. A Lady writing to the firm says—"My brother, an old customer of yours, writes me, 'You had better furnish at Oetzmann's; you can't get anything bad or ugly there.'" This independent testimony is the more gratifying to OETZMANN & Co. as it summarises their great aim and object both as to quality and design in all their own manufactures and selections from others.

TELEGRAPHIC ADDRESS:—"OETZMANN, LONDON."

COUNTRY ORDERS.—OETZMANN & Co. offer special advantages to Country Customers. The Goods are very carefully packed by experienced Packers, FREE OF CHARGE, and delivered free to any of the London Railway Termini or Wharves, and in cases of considerable purchases special arrangements are made for the delivery, either by Road, Rail, or Sea, and, whenever advisable, in our large enclosed Pantechmicon Furniture Vans, constructed expressly for the purpose, also the fixing in position at the Purchaser's Residence by competent persons, who are sent with the vans to all parts of Great Britain and the Continent. OETZMANN & Co. have a Waiting Room fitted up for the convenience of their Country Customers, many spending hours and days at their Establishment.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT.—Those residing abroad or in the country, at a distance inconvenient for a personal visit, and desirous of leaving the selection of Goods to the Firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interest in the selection, and the immense increase of orders received per post, together with the continual receipt of Letters expressing satisfaction with the Goods sent, are gratifying evidences of successful efforts to please. OETZMANN & Co. originated this system some years since, feeling that there was a great want for some firm to whom persons residing at a distance could forward their orders for any articles required in the furnishing or replenishing of a house, with the certainty of such being selected with the same care as if they visited London themselves; and the result has proved they were right, this Department having increased rapidly, and to an extent hitherto unprecedented. Any article not represented in this Catalogue can be supplied at the same price, and frequently at from 5 to 10 per cent. less than charged elsewhere. By the operation of the Parcels Post many articles can be sent Post free to any part of the United Kingdom at from 3d. to 1s. extra.

NOTE.—In ordering per post, please do not cut the leaves for enclosure—quoting page, number and price will be sufficient.

ESTIMATES.—OETZMANN & Co. supply Estimates and Designs free of charge for the Decoration and complete Furnishing of Hotels, Clubs, Mansions, and Houses of any class. Wherever practicable a personal visit to the Show Rooms is advised, as affording a better opportunity of comparison and choice, but in cases where this would be inconvenient an experienced representative is sent to view the house, note architecture, aspects, &c., take measurements, and furnish estimates.

MERCHANTS, SHIPPERS AND THE TRADE will find great advantages in OETZMANN & Co.'s Wholesale and Export Department.

TERMS.—All Goods are marked in plain figures at the lowest possible price for Cash, from which no discount or abatement can be allowed.

OETZMANN & Co. beg respectfully to intimate that the business continues to receive their direct personal attention and supervision in all its details; and in case of any customer not receiving proper attention OETZMANN & Co. will feel much obliged by a letter being addressed to them marked "Private."

REMOVALS AND WAREHOUSING. HOUSES TO BE LET OR SOLD, TOWN OR COUNTRY. REGISTER POST FREE ON APPLICATION.

Please see page 639.

CONDITIONS UPON WHICH GOODS ARE SENT CARRIAGE PAID.

OETZMANN & CO. beg leave to state that all their prices are based upon the lowest possible margin of profit for free delivery in London and Suburbs only, which will not admit of their paying carriage of goods into the Country. No other system is equitable, and those firms who send goods carriage paid are compelled to charge a higher rate of profit to cover cost of carriage to long distances.

As the cost of carriage is very much exaggerated by provincial firms to account for their high prices, OETZMANN & Co. are prepared to deliver all prepaid orders of £100 to £150, including placing in position, laying carpets, fixing blinds, poles, &c., in England or Wales for £5, Scotland £10, Ireland £15. Larger quantities at slightly increased cost.

Special quotation will be given for Scotland and Ireland if delivered to nearest Railway Station only.

For amounts under £100, a special price will be quoted for delivering in Cases to the nearest Railway Station, or if desired, an estimate will be given to include placing in position, &c.

This will enable any intending purchaser to make a direct comparison with local firms, and they will find a saving of 10 to 20 per cent., besides having the benefit of a much larger selection and all the newest styles.

Hotels, Clubs, large Institutions, &c., are subject to special arrangements.

VESTIBULE—ENTRANCE TO SHOW ROOMS—GENERAL FURNISHING.

HOW I FURNISHED MY HOUSE FOR £120.

(RE-PRINTED, BY KIND PERMISSION, FROM "THE LADY.")

"IT can't be done."

So I thought, and so said my friends; but, possible or not possible, it had to be done. I had just been appointed manager of the country branch of the — Bank, with the use of the rooms above the bank, which I was expected to furnish and occupy. And—"here's the rub"—all the spare cash I had was the above-mentioned sum, and how to furnish all the empty rooms for that sum was the problem I found facing me.

No credit for me, for I knew from the bitter experience of some of my friends that to furnish on the so-called "easy terms" meant years of misery, if not simply ruin. A certain "maiden fair to see" was interested in the adornment of that home, which she had promised to share with me; and I not unnaturally sought her counsel and assistance, knowing how well I could rely upon her artistic taste and skill in arrangement. Upon her advice, I wrote for a catalogue to OETZMANN & Co., of Hampstead Road, whom we had often seen mentioned in The Lady, a journal which we agreed must be taken in regularly, even if the "musty old money reports," as my fiancée styled them, had to suffer.

For the next fortnight all our spare time was occupied upon the engrossing theme—even our dreams were not free. Chérie said she really dreamt several beautiful ideas, though once she was papering the walls with Turkey carpets. We roughly apportioned the amount we had to spend among the various rooms, and, price list and pictures in hand, we settled the details, as first one item had to be struck out as too expensive, and replaced by something cheaper, or a more artistic effect was to be obtained by substituting a different article.

Finally we arrived at something which not only pleased ourselves, but, strange to say, pleased our friends as well, and those who were in our confidence said they should not have believed it could have been done in so substantial and effective a manner with so small an expenditure. One bachelor friend asked me quite seriously next day whether my fiancée had a sister?

"Whatever for, I wonder?" said Chérie, with a laugh, when I told her.

Many there are, alas! in these hard times whose amount of available cash is limited, and who do not care to go a-borrowing, and therefore a-sorrowing. I give for their benefit a brief sketch of the way I laid out my £120.

The drawing-room was naturally our first consideration, for here was our chance par excellence to display our taste and make our first determined stand against the many temptations to extravagance. First of all we stained the floor all over, instead of only the usual margin, and gave it a thin coat of varnish. When this was dry and hard, we polished it with a mixture of beeswax and turpentine till the surface was sufficiently firm and smooth for dancing upon, so that when having a few friends in at any time, we could easily remove the carpet, and the floor was ready for a dance. The carpet being a bordered square of best quality Brussels rendered the operation easy.

The next thing to claim our attention was the suite, and as we did not much admire the ordinary regiment of six chairs all exactly alike, we selected a small one, consisting of a settee and two easy chairs, called the "Lynton," a soft-sounding name, which the suite fully endorsed, for it was most delightfully springy. It was made of inlaid rosewood, and covered in a rich silk. We next bought a "Princess" wicker chair, already draped in tapestry, at 12s. 9d., and two comfortable folding chairs, with tapestry and plush seats and backs, at 7s. 6d. Perhaps it will be better to give a short list of the amount paid later on. A pretty little cabinet, with four bevelled silver plates, and an overmantel, when in position, gave a finished air to the whole, and served as a resting-place for those little knick-knacks which play such a prominent part in decoration. Such lovely little cabinets we saw at higher prices that we were sorely tempted to be reckless; but our cash was limited, and we had to cut our coat according to our cloth, or rather our cabinet according to our cash.

Fortunately a piano was promised for a wedding present, so we were saved that expense, although we could have got a nice little instrument for £15. We bought a very pretty little enamelled table, called the "Divan," which, placed in the window with a palm upon it, lent that charm to the tout ensemble which foliage alone can give. The remaining furniture consisted of a rosewood inlaid centre table, a bamboo table devoted to the dispensing of the fragrant cup at the mystic hour of 5 p.m., and also a bamboo fire screen, with gold embroidered panel and folding shelf. The fender was of polished brass and matched the fire-irons or fire brasses, to be quite correct, the coal-box also had brass mountings.

We—though I only looked on, and, entre nous, have a suspicion hindered as well—I say we made our winter curtains from Imperial plush; while a pretty printed muslin, fifty inches wide, at 6½d. per yard, made our summer curtains, and was trimmed with a frilling of the same material. Some bamboo flower tubes of several lengths, also sold by Messrs. OETZMANN & Co., were hung on the walls, and filled with flowers, dried grasses, or sometimes ferns or ivy, according to the season. They added to the decorative effect, without materially adding to the expense.

HOW I FURNISHED MY HOUSE FOR £120.

(RE-PRINTED, BY KIND PERMISSION, FROM "THE LADY.")

THE dining-room gave us but little trouble, for we availed ourselves of the very convenient plan of buying the complete furniture at a fixed price. It was the picture of it we saw in the catalogue that first attracted us, and then a fancied resemblance between the young lady and my fiancée settled the matter. The price was 27 guineas, and it was certainly a marvel for the money, even although the young lady pictured was not included in the price. The carpet was a best quality Brussels, with a handsome border, being a Persian design in dark rich colourings. We stained a margin of two feet all round the room, which helped to throw up the richness of the carpet.

The couch, chairs, sideboard, dining-table and overmantel were beautifully carved, and the seats were covered in best leather. There was also included an Indian rug, a brass cornice-pole, a pair of tapestry curtains, with dado and border, a black and brass fender, a set of solid fire brasses, and a brass-mounted coal-vase. We wisely determined to leave the question of ornaments to the last, as we felt comfort and durability to be the first consideration, knowing we could add the superfluities from time to time as we could afford them.

Total for dining room £28. 7s. 0d.

For the best bedroom we selected an ash bedroom suite, the "Welbeck," containing a large wardrobe, with silvered glass door, and with long drawer beneath. A double washstand, with marble top and tiled back, and having towel rails attached, and a pedestal cupboard incorporated in the design. The dressing-table and chest of drawers were also combined. The usual three chairs to match completed the suite. The panels were incised, and the suite being in natural wood and polished looked very well. A "Windsor" carpet, fringed and bordered, was put down after the margin of the floor was stained and varnished—a most convenient and healthy arrangement for a sleeping-room.

For our curtains we bought some cretonne, the "poppy," designed by the well-known Mr. Lewis F. Day. A bedstead, with a woven wire mattress (a great improvement upon the lumbering contrivances of our forefathers) and a horsehair mattress, &c., completed the furniture, with the exception of the toilet service, which I must mention separately, as it is the nicest thing I have ever seen and is, I believe, a patent of Messrs. Oetzmann & Co.'s. The ewer resembles a very handsome vase, with two recessed handles following the outline, and placed in such a way as to make it almost an impossibility for a careless maid to break them off; while it can be lifted and poured with either one or both hands.

Total	£19	15	6

For the spare bedroom we found we really could not do better than again avail ourselves of the "furnished room" system by having the 8½ guineas

"bedroom furnished complete." As a guide to those who prefer selecting their articles separately, I will mention that it consisted of a large hanging wardrobe with drawer under; dressing-table with toilet-glass attached; corner wash-stand, with marble top and tile back; towel airer; two cane-seat chairs, and hanging bookshelf—all enamelled a soft pale green (we could have had another colour had we wished it), and a decorated French bedstead, also enamelled to match; a palliasse, top mattress, bolster, pillow, toilet set, water bottle and tumbler, fender and fire-irons, carpet and rug.

Total complete for £8. 18s. 6d.

For the servants' bedroom a similar set of furnishings, but not quite so elaborate, cost five guineas complete. The curtains for these last two bedrooms we made from "Kate Greenaway" art serge, one and a half yards wide, at 1s. 3½d. per yard.

A No. 2 set of household linen, at £3. 11s. 11d., supplied us with all the blankets, sheets, quilts, &c., we required for the whole house.

The hall did not present any great difficulty, as the space was limited. We covered the floor with linoleum of good quality, which cost us 2s. 4d. per square yard. Here let me say a word in praise of the old-fashioned compound, beeswax and turpentine, and a little elbow-grease. If the polish of the furniture is dull, a little applied, and finally polished with a dry cloth, will revive its beauty. For marble mantelpieces or clocks scratched or dull, a little well rubbed on will restore them. There is nothing better for the varnished margins of floors, and what suggested this digression, for linoleum; it seems to preserve the surface, and prevent the pattern wearing off, and besides making it easier to clean. I am afraid we shall be grey-haired, or have to hire a boy with hob-nailed boots to dance on it, before we can wear a hole through it. Mais revenons à nos moutons. We had a mat known as the "Imperial," a cocoa fibre mat, in a combination of brown and red, for the door, while for furniture an oak hat and umbrella stand and a hall chair was all we had room for.

For the stair-carpet we selected a small Oriental design, with a golden ground, which was sufficiently light, without being too much so as to show every footmark. We could not afford Wilton, so "until our ship comes home" we have to content ourselves—a very easy matter—with a velvet pile carpet instead. The landings were covered in velvet pile carpet, twenty-seven inches wide, to match, and, with brass rods for the stairs and mats for the room doors, completed the hall.

FOR the kitchen we had a No. 2A List at £10, which included table and chairs, together with all the necessary pots and pans; while a No. 2 List at £3. 6s. 6d. supplied all the necessary china and glass for the kitchen and servants' use, and left them nothing to grumble at. Of the remaining sundries I will briefly mention the "Milton" dinner service, both good and cheap, though far from the lowest in price; and a dessert service, called the "Kingston," at 9s. 9d., excited our wonder at its being produced for such a low price. For table glass, the "Club" service for twelve persons was only £2. 10s. 9d., while a charming tea service, fluted white and gold, did not cost us more than 12s. 6d. Table cutlery and plate, of which latter item we had a good many presents, came to about £3. The totals thus amounting to—

Thus is the problem solved; and to those who wish to do likewise, I can assure them, if they have more money to spend, there will not be the slightest difficulty in spending it, but if they have less, a sensible reduction could be made, for we by no means selected the cheapest articles.

A PRETTY HALL AND LANDING.

(RE-PRINTED, BY KIND PERMISSION, FROM "THE LADY.")

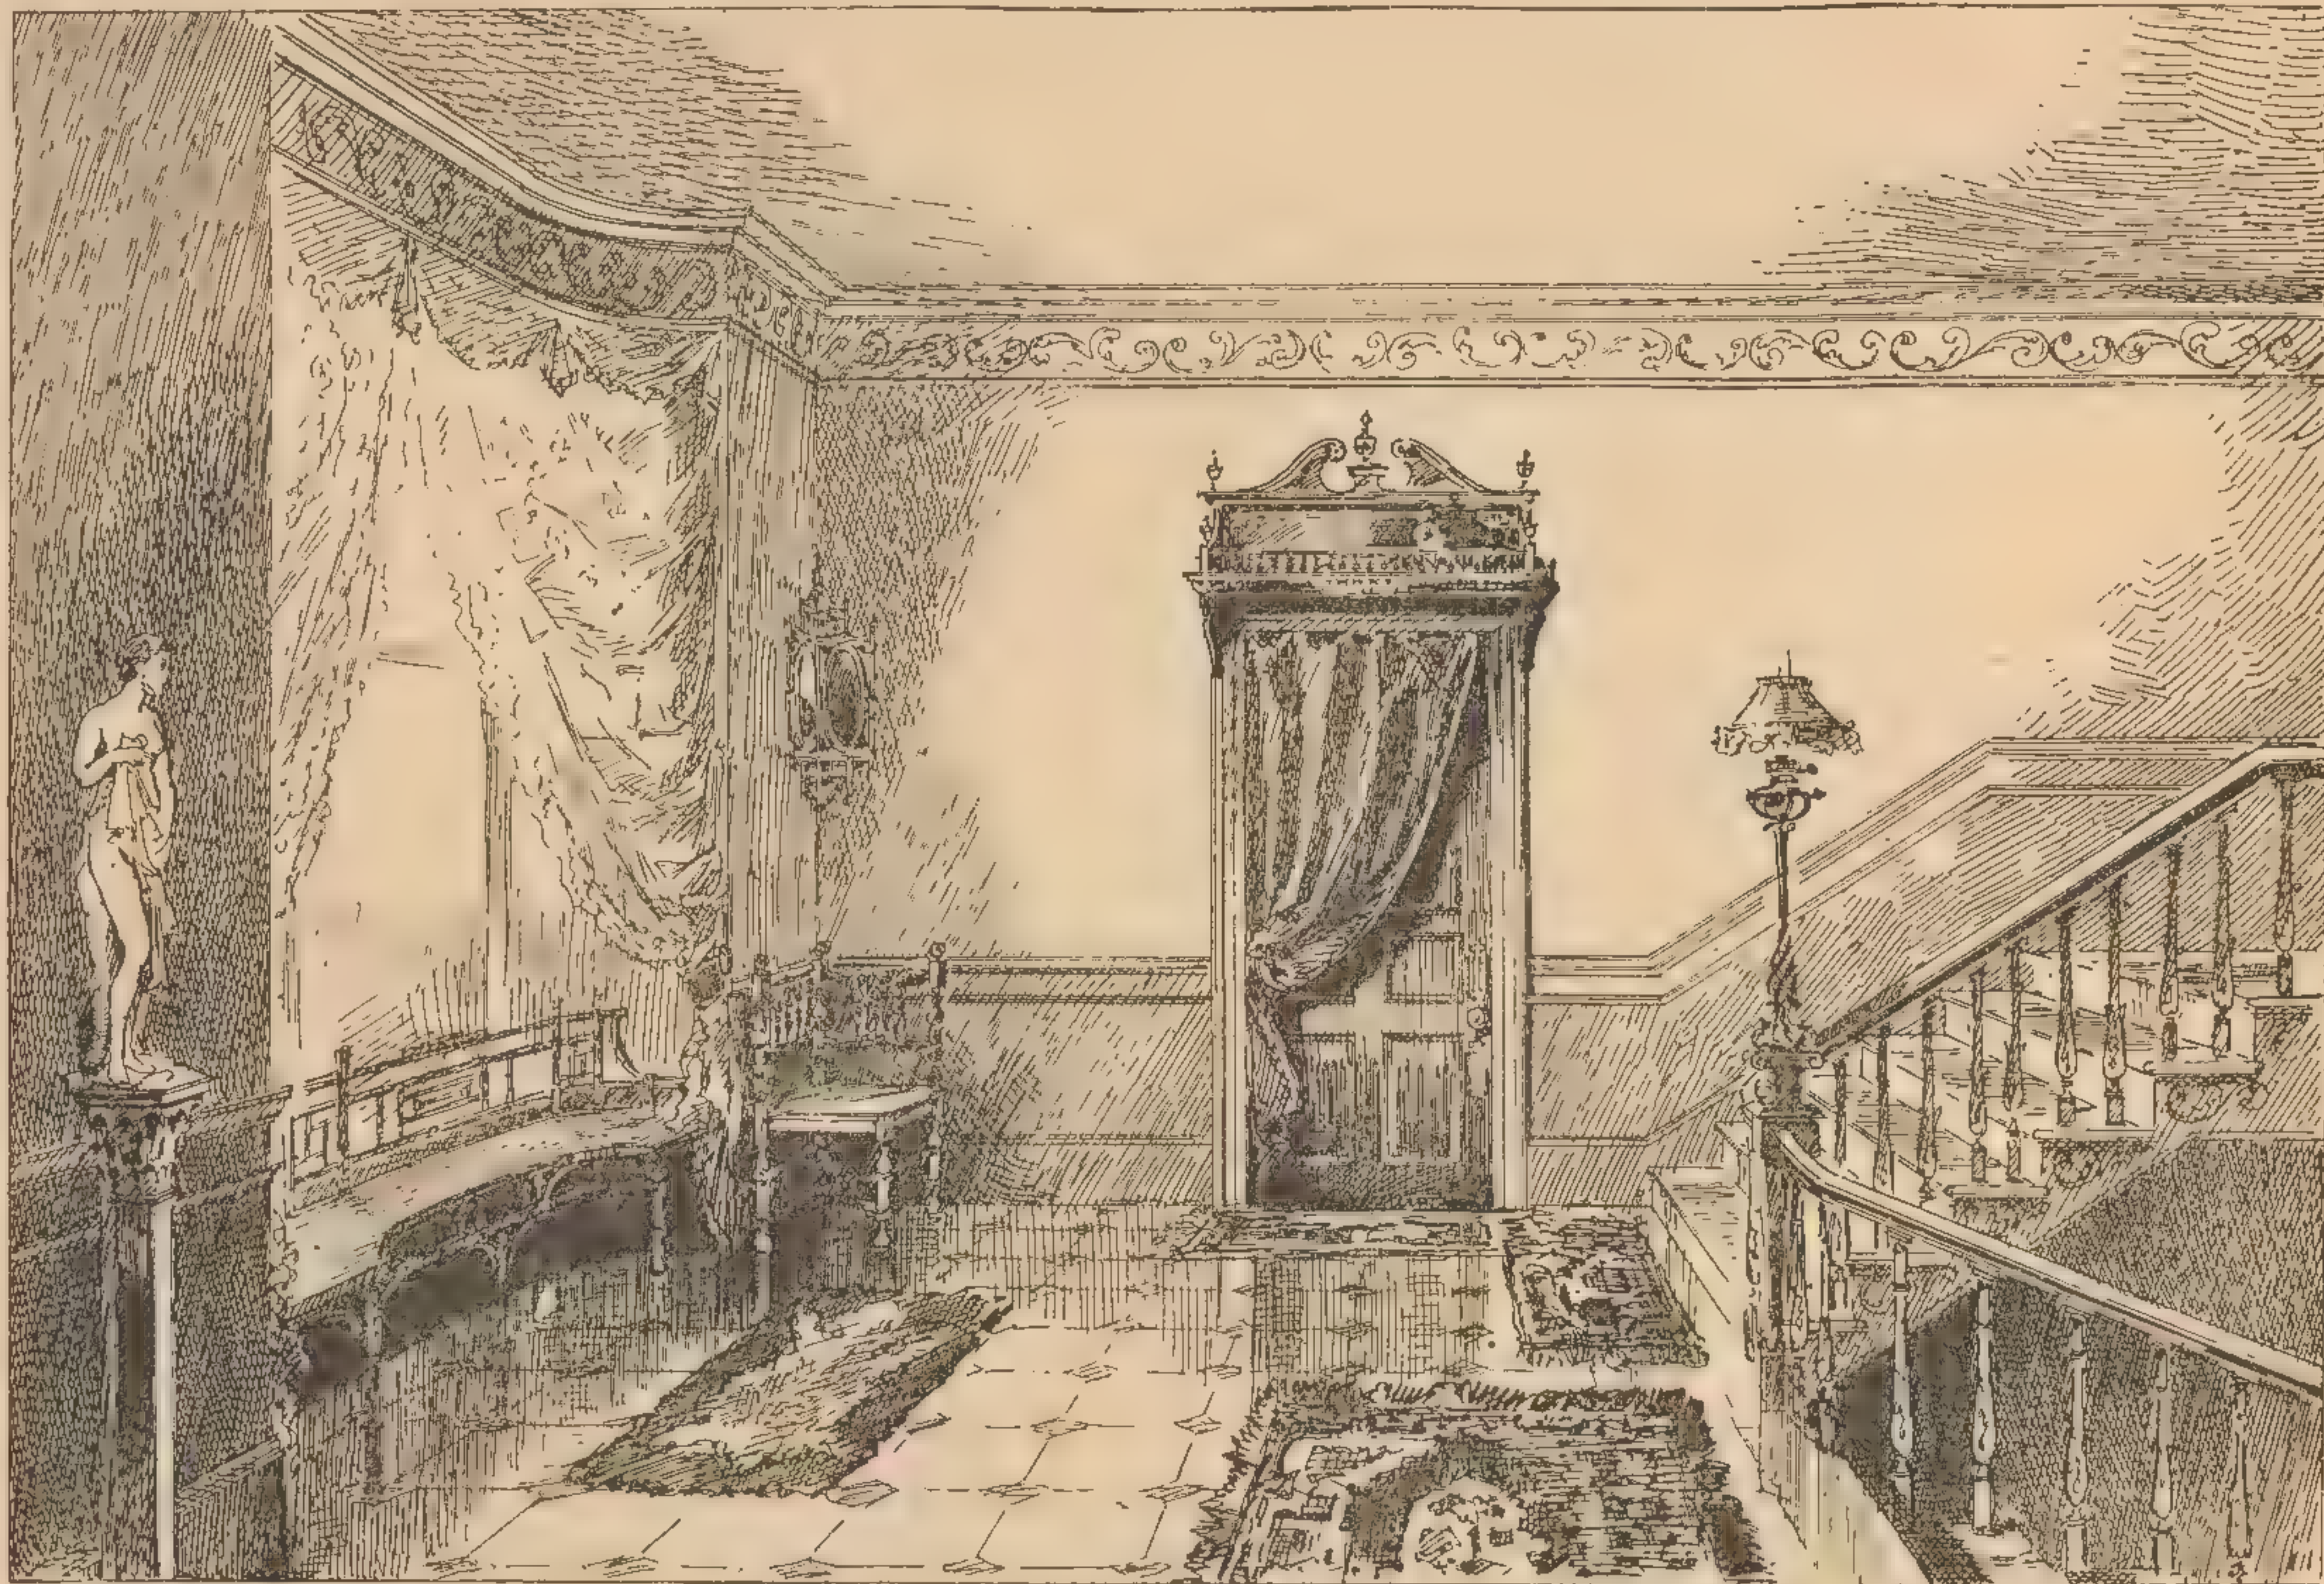

THE pictures illustrative of the above tell their own tale with tolerable completeness, but a few remarks regarding them may make the matter more intelligible. The hall is more spacious than those of the generality of town residences, in which the architect's and builders' joint wits seem to have been set going to dwarf and narrow both entrance and stairs. It is tiled with white and black marble, over which Indian rugs are strewn; but it should be mentioned that if marble be not forthcoming, a linoleum of the self-same pattern is obtainable. The walls are coloured Nile red, and there is a dado of Indian matting dyed to match, and headed with a split bamboo rail. The furniture is entirely of oak, the very best wearing wood one can find for a hall, for dirt and dust merely seem to mellow it, and the more it mellows the better it looks. Not only are the hat-stand, box-lounge, table and chair made of it, but the doors are supplied with artistic ornamentation, and the mirror is framed with the same splendid wood. The doors are draped with some such serviceable material as the "Carré" cloth made by Oetzmann, a thick and yet soft substance, costing 2s. 11½d. a yard; while the back part of the hall, which boasts stairs leading to the kitchen quarters, is screened off by the "Mahra," a cheap tapestry sold by the same firm. The stairs are carpeted with Axminster, not too dark a colouring. It is as false economy to purchase cheap carpeting as it is foolish to imagine that a dark one will show less dirt than a light one. Axminster is charmingly soft to the tread, and does not wear at the edges of the stair readily, especially if it be a worsted-back pile.

On the landing the same flooring continues. But the leading feature of the furniture alters, and is now bamboo instead of oak. The overdoor shown is a pretty finish to the curtain, and the pedestal upon which a statuette stands might equally be used for a pot of palms or a lamp.

THE GIRLS' OWN ROOM.

(RE-PRINTED BY KIND PERMISSION, FROM "THE LADY.")

IT was a happy thought that struck us, three downtrodden girls, to fit up an old lumber-room as a sanctum where we could do just as we pleased without fear of intrusion from our troublesome brothers, who, somehow, don't seem to understand girls and their ways.

It was only a short time ago I had drawn a beautiful picture of a horse, when one of the household tyrants comes in with his cricket bat in his hand and immediately says, "What is the matter with that cow you are drawing; it looks so ill and unhappy, poor thing?" And when I tried to explain that it was a horse, and that cows did not have bushy tails, he pretended not to believe me. Another time, when I had taken ever so much trouble in arranging some flowers, my horror was great on finding soon afterwards the flowers gone and some dreadful live things in the water, which he said were newts, and "rare fun." I won't even mention the trouble we had one day in disentangling the fish-hooks from the contents of our work-basket, but will pass on to what we did and how we did it.

The furniture was not costly, but pretty and convenient, and I do not know how to express my gratitude more practically than in giving my fellow-sufferers and their kind-hearted parents a few hints how to fit up a similar room for themselves.

For the floor we found there was nothing cheaper and cleaner, as well as effective, than the plain boards treated with a coat of stain—Jackson's, I think it was—but doubtless there are other kinds as good. This we stained ourselves, for it did not take us long, and we afterwards felt fully an inch taller than other girls who did not know how to stain floors. Fortunately, a country friend presented us with a nice cake of beeswax, part of which we dissolved in turpentine, and once a-week or so we rubbed a little over the floor, and polished with a dry cloth.

Though the floor was a nice, cosy-looking colour, we procured a few foreign rugs to brighten it up and make the room more comfortable. Large size Scinde rugs cost only 5s. 11d. each, while a good Kurd rug shrunk our purse only by the amount of 7s. 6d. We bought nearly all of what we required from Messrs. OETZMANN & Co., of Hampstead Road; one thing being a convenient wardrobe, which fits into the corner of any room, and costing only 50s., was the reverse of extravagant, while it held a good deal. The sliding curtain in front was made of art serge at 1s. 3½d. per yard.

A French proverb I had to learn at school says "Ce n'est que le premier pas qui coûte," and it was astonishing after we had taken the first step how our difficulties seemed to vanish, and the help we received from unexpected quarters. Through the liberality of our bachelor uncle, we were enabled to indulge in one of OETZMANN's £15 pianofortes, and so silence those boys again, and prevent them telling primo to hurry along with the treble, or she would never catch secundo up, when we were playing duets. The drapery for the back of the piano we made from India Exhibition muslin at 2½d. per yard. A dwarf book-case served the double purpose of a bookcase and music cabinet. An overmantel for 33s. 6d., marvellously cheap, as our admiring friends told us, and a mantel-board in Imperial plush, with hanging curtains, embossed and trimmed with ball fringe for 18s. 6d. complete, were all we required for the fireplace.

A couple of rush-seated church chairs which we painted over with some Aspinall's enamel cost us 1s. 10d. each, and, draped with similar muslin to the piano, served as piano seats or anywhere else about the room we wanted them. We also transmogrified a cheap American hammock-chair, which we bought for 2s. 6d., by the use of enamel, and covering the canvas with art cretonne at 6½d.

per yard. This was very comfortable; but as we couldn't all sit in it at once, we also purchased a delightful wicker chair, called the "Cascade," for use when we feel most extra particularly lazy. I have tried to soften the word "lazy" as much as possible, but I am afraid that chair will be worn out before its time. Somehow, one or other of us always do feel most extra particularly lazy, and the chair is so comfortable.

We made our window seats, following out the directions given in The Lady for 25th August, 1887, page 148. For the benefit of those readers who are not the happy possessors of The Lady for that date, I will briefly explain how we made the window seats. Having obtained some old packing-cases, all the same size, we placed them in a line, on their sides, with the open part into the room, and these we firmly fixed together. We then made a cushion to go right along the top, and to do this we formed the bottom of the cushion of canvas cut to the right size, and the top of a piece of Carré cloth, and a narrow border of the latter material connected the two, leaving one end open for convenience of stuffing. Having filled our cushion with the softest material at our command, which we begged, borrowed, or—otherwise, we next put buttons, made to match, at regular intervals, using for the purpose a small packing-needle and fine twine, though we found afterwards an upholsterer's needle, being longer and pointed both ends, would have been better.

We next persuaded one of our brothers, by the gift of half our cake of beeswax, on which he had cast longing eyes, to fix up shelves in the interior of the packing-cases, and which proved very useful. The contents we hid from public gaze by means of a curtain or valance, which fell down in front, being fastened on under the cushion. The window curtains we made of the same Carré cloth, which, being all wool and thick, excluded the draughts, while the price, 2s. 11½d. per yard, was not beyond our means; but if it had been, then we should have chosen art serge at 1s. 3½d. per yard.

The corner cabinet we bought is entirely an article of luxury, but not an expensive one; and the octagon bamboo table, with four folding flaps, also from OETZMANN's, is extremely useful for informal teas and many other purposes, and could not be considered dear at 14s. 6d. Another pretty little table, the "Divan," cost us 12s. 9d. A plain wood medicine cupboard, at 5s. 11d., we treated to two coats of Aspinall's enamel, and found very convenient for odd bottles and similar articles. Our easel and sketching materials found a fitting home in our new room, as also did our sewing-machine, and beguiled many a rainy hour.

For our other wall decorations we purchased four art-coloured brackets, which cost 1s. 1d., 1s. 11d., 2s. 11d., and 3s. 6d. each, a few bamboo flower-holders at 7d. each, and a plain wood overdoor at 19s. 6d., which was duly painted to match the woodwork of the door. We could have studied economy in the overdoor, had we wished, by making one of a plain piece of wood, about six inches wide and the length of the top moulding of the door frame, and cutting two shaped brackets with a fret saw to support the ends, the whole being nailed on to the outside moulding of the top of the door, and painted to match. For ornaments we borrowed a few surplus ones, and had others given to us, and if some were a little chipped it was their only fault, and easily overcome by judicious arrangement.

When the room was quite finished, we invited the boys to tea, and were quite pleased with their respectful behaviour, though the youngest, aged thirteen, said we all ought to smoke the "calumet of peace" together, as was always done when the chiefs of one tribe visited the "wigwams" of another; and we had to inform him that all ladies did not smoke, and he would have to experiment on the calumet outside, if he cared to risk the consequences.

HOW TO FURNISH A COUNTRY HOUSE.

BY "THE LADY" HOME DECORATOR.

(RE-PRINTED, BY KIND PERMISSION, FROM "THE LADY.")

A SMALL BEDROOM.

MODERN houses have brought into play the inventive resources of furnishers, and particularly is this the case since the habit of living in flats became general. Furniture for tiny rooms is now universally kept at the best emporiums, and wonderful indeed is the ingenuity displayed in making the smallest area of space cover the greatest number of requirements. Messrs. OETZMANN, Hampstead Road, have made this feature a study, and we publish with this sketches of several convenient inventions as applied to bedrooms which we feel certain will interest and please our readers.

These are adapted peculiarly for the kind of room that is to serve a double purpose. Many girls like nothing better than to turn their sleeping apartments into cosy rooms wherein they can study, read, write, or do a little amateur dressmaking now and then during the day. In many cases, too, they are anxious to metamorphosise the bedroom, not from choice, but from necessity, in the way that girls at college do, or young men possessing four walls and a ceiling only as a lodging.

Nothing is easier than for them to so arrange matters. The bed by night is a couch by day, covered with a bright Como quilt at 4s. 11d. each; the dressing-table is hidden by a Japanese screen (I have seen many at OETZMANN's that cost a trifle only), the washstand as we shall see betrays no idea of its reality; the wardrobe is a thing of beauty. When night comes, five minutes transforms all this; the Como quilt is removed from the bed and neatly folded away, for it is a pity to crush so pretty a coverlet, and to sleep beneath the blankets without any counterpane is healthy. The screen also retires into private life, or breaks the current of air between bed and window; the dressing-table is revealed, and what looked like a table before now blossoms forth into a washstand.

How is it all done? Let the sketch tell its own tale.

Illustration No. 1 shows us a combination dressing-chest and looking-glass, holding a good-sized cupboard as well as drawers. But supposing that a piece of furniture of even this size be less desirable than the space it occupies, a glance at No. 9 will show you that a wall dressing-table is obtainable. This is simply a glass upon a ledge, which can be fixed firmly on the wall, an operation not to be recommended to amateurs, by the bye, comprising a good-sized drawer for brushes and combs, and smaller ones for other necessities of the toilet. When the brushes and combs are in the drawer, this arrangement, particularly if placed above the fireplace, will simulate very successfully a pretty overmantel.

Of washstands there is quite a large choice. No. 7 is a corner stand, put upon castors so that it may readily be moved from place to place. It has a tiled back and marble slab, but being a somewhat ordinary-looking piece of furniture, though so nice and pretty a one, it needs but little explanation.

Not so No. 8. Here we have a real and very clever deception. Glance at the neat cupboard-table when closed; who would guess it to be anything but a useful little stowaway hole? Now look at it when open; a flap pulls down and makes a table for the washing-basin, while within, upon a tiny shelf, the glass and water-bottle may be placed. Beneath comes further aids to ablution, and, crowning triumph, there is a towel rail on the inner side of the small door. This I call real 'cute, as our American cousins would say. A very useful and ornamental addition to a small room is the pretty overmantel book-case and cupboard-shelf (No. 5), where china, favourite authors, and (behind the doors) medicine bottles, scents, and so forth may keep one another company. As in No. 4, the 'cute washing-stand has a simpler prototype, in which there is a cupboard wherein to hide the toilet service, so in No. 3 we find a smaller wall cupboard, very pretty and compact, but not so handsome as No. 5.

A hanging cupboard (No. 2) for the corner of the room, draped in front with curtains, is a more elegant piece of furniture than the ordinary wardrobe, and quite as efficacious. No. 6 is a useful flap-table, containing a deep aperture for odds and ends; and in No. 10 is another ornamental and pretty washstand.

To apply these to our country house bedroom is no difficult matter.

Supposing we had to choose for a room that would be equally useful for a girl, a boy, or young man visitor, we should buy dressing-chest No. 1, washstand No. 8, wardrobe No. 2, overmantel-shelf No. 5, and the useful table No. 6, which would do for writing and other purposes.

An iron bedstead, with a patent wire spring mattress and a hair mattress over, would also be bought; and we should choose a perfectly black one, with no brass about it, as these always look well, and wear excellently. The wire mattress makes the bed very healthy and comfortable—that is to say, if it be a single one; if two persons sleep together, I have heard it said that the movement of one disturbs the other, as the mattress is very pliant, and bends with each stir. No bed should have either hangings or valance, for if they have, one of the rules of good health will be violated. A nice bedspread is desirable, and if it be one that hangs well over the sides, the valance will not be missed. At night this should certainly be removed, so that a free current of air may pass beneath the bed.

HOW TO FURNISH A HOUSE FOR £250.

SO MANY clients who have a limited sum to expend in furnishing are desirous of knowing how they may lay it out to the best advantage, that we have ventured to submit a scheme based upon an outlay of £250. This scheme is only offered as a guide, and may be varied by omitting any article not required, and adding or substituting others according to the individual taste, and the requirements of the house to be furnished. Each item is given under the heading of its separate room, so, should it be desired to furnish a smaller number of rooms, any room may be eliminated from the estimate, while, should a larger number of rooms be required, any of the rooms may be duplicated, different designs at the same price being supplied so as to afford variety. Great assistance will be found in forming estimates for other amounts by a reference to our complete sets of Linens, Plate and Cutlery, Kitchen Utensils, &c., to be found on pages 474 to 479, 499-500, 569 to 571, and 637.

NOTES ON FURNITURE

BY

M. F. FRITH.

WITH ILLUSTRATIONS.

"What is fit is fine."

Is THERE so great an improvement in Taste as optimists would have us believe?

I am thinking of a certain Jacobean house, with which I am familiar—do you recognize this sketch? No doubt you pass by the quaint porched doorway every day—a little house in a quiet London Square, built two hundred years ago, and never inhabited I take it by other than modest folk. Yet these few panelled rooms with their delicate ornamentation are full of unexpected lines and details, such as you never see in a modern villa, and are in their unpretentious grace fit lodging for a Queen.

I should like to turn the door handle and take you through the hall, up the shallow stairs, pass the twisted railings, and so to the parlour where behind the panel a hiding place still exists. But charming mantel-piece and frieze, carved recess and well-cut mouldings are not, alas, for the majority. At the most one is given in the ordinary red brick London houses perhaps a pretty bow window filled with leaded glass, or a well-made door: and it is with the ordinary London house these slight notes are concerned.

Now, the “eye” of the house, as the old dramatists say, is the drawing room, and here are often made as many mistakes as ever there were in the despised Early Victorian period, which except in the matter of brocades, perhaps, and tapestries, was no worse off, I think, than the Late Victorian. Magenta and grass-green rep hangings bound with a figured braid are perhaps as effective as peacock blue and old gold serge, edged with a ball fringe: and there is little to choose between the modern draped easels, Japanese fans or corner-stacks of dead rushes and the “fine purple spar” and “sparkling Bohemian glass, ruby red,” admired of the Jane Eyre generation. Indeed, of the two adornments, spar and Bohemian glass are preferable: they are less pretentious and as pleasant to the eye.

Colour: next to colour, Form; these things impress one first on seeing a room. But colour and form seldom enter into the calculations of the ordinary middle-class furnisher. Papers that are no sort of decoration are too often chosen, ill-shaped chairs and tables are crowded together, then comes a rain of worthless ornament, and the drawing room is considered complete.

Those worthless ornaments, how dreadful they are. It is a safe rule to go without rather than fill chimney-piece and cabinet with what is of no value artistically or intrinsically; and then by degrees to educate one's eye to appreciate old china, ivories, miniatures, enamels, and gems. That these can frequently be picked up by the skilful buyer for no more than is squandered on the vulgar olla podrida with which so many disfigure their houses is not sufficiently understood.

But it is not enough to buy pretty things. One has afterwards to learn how to arrange and how to take care of them.

If harmony is desired a good background of some definite tone is a necessity. The pattern must be one that the eye follows with pleasure. A perfectly plain paper is preferable to any ill-drawn or aggressive design. Next consider the shape of the furniture, which must be simple, with the least possible ornamentation: the woods employed must be the best of their kind, and the materials, even if cretonne only is used, of a quality that will last. There should be space on the tables for the books and employments of the moment: space in the room in which to move to and fro or there can be no comfort. In how many drawing rooms does one find these necessary qualifications?

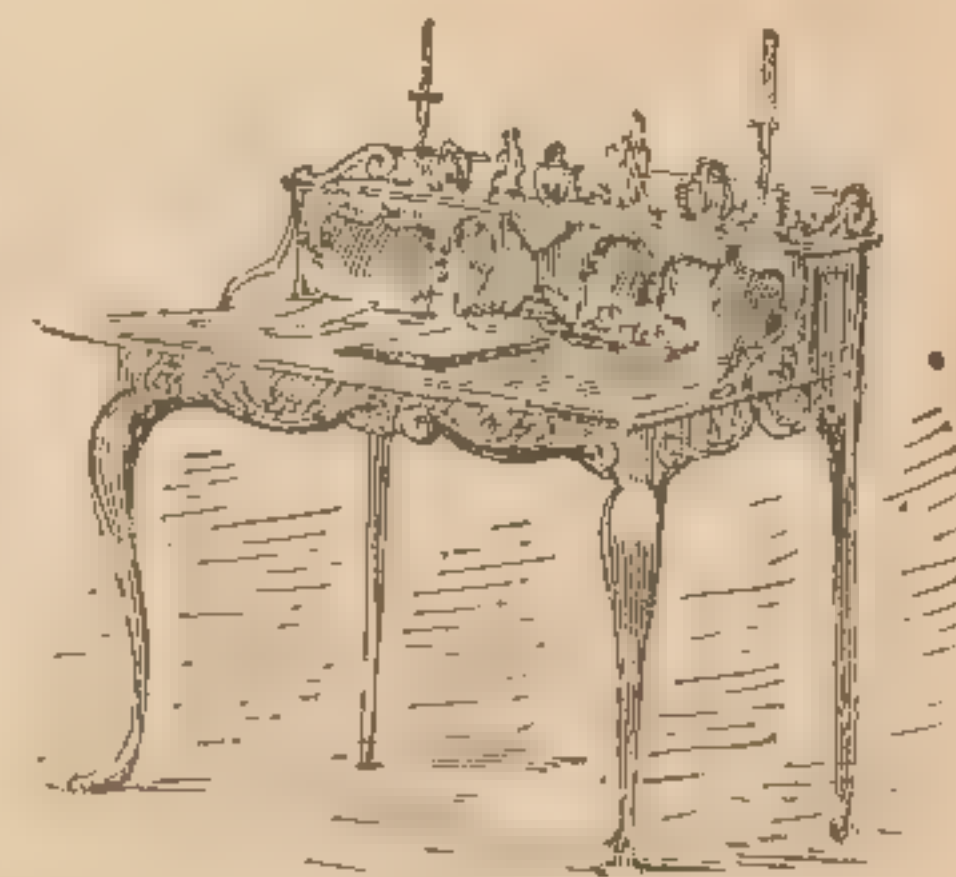

Look at the drawing on the next page (Sketch 1). Figure to yourself the wood-work, dado, plaster frieze, and ceiling painted ivory. The walls hung with a damask-patterned paper, in tone a fine green—"green, but not too green," to paraphrase Mr. Woodhouse. On the parquet floor an Axminster carpet, two shades of Indian red. At the window and covering the chairs and sofas, a green and red brocade, woven after an Italian design. The dog-grate backed with red tiles. Here and there on the mantel-piece and tables pieces of Indian china, red and blue and green. Over the fire-place an old gold looking-glass with a frieze in relief, a little tilted so as to reflect the room. On each side a ring sconce for candles. For the rest there comes opposite the fire (I can see them, though you cannot) another high sofa, long and wide, like those that stand in the galleries at Knole; and a writing table in a good light near the bow window; and a piano, and china cabinets, and more low arm chairs and broad tables, and a bookcase or two, all in that beautiful dark Spanish mahogany, the most decorative of woods.

This is not an extravagant mode of furnishing. These things, made of the best materials, will be as good in a hundred years as they are to-day if they have moderate care taken of them. There is nothing to get out of order.

There is nothing to soil but the brocade, which should be of such a quality that the necessary cleaning does no harm.

A house carefully tended by generation after generation becomes a delightful possession, but one that is rare except among rich folk. Humbler ones are content with the pieces of silver, damask and laces, china and books that were treasured by their forbears, and a family is poor indeed that has not something individual, something that cannot be bought, belonging to it. The drawing room should hold inherited miniatures, pot-pourri bowls and Chinese teapots, the square of needlework that makes so graceful a screen. Speaking eloquently of the dead they are priceless—"old friends, old books, old wine"—you know how the song goes? Beware, oh modern furnisher, how you collect the admired of the moment, how you waste money on "truck" (to use an American expression) that wiser eyes never see, for your descendants when they come to inherit your goods and chattels will indeed not be grateful to you. The thing of beauty that is a joy for ever is not a painted milking-stool or a fretwork bracket; and the popular taste is, as a rule, a taste to be avoided.

On the subject of pictures for the drawing room it is difficult to advise. For myself I would have good engravings and nothing else of some of Sir Joshua's charming lords and ladies, of Watteau groups, of Turner's poetic landscapes. Only to-day someone writes to me, "I have a collection of old prints, many of them fine proofs, after Reynolds and others." How much one would like to buy them all! Here they are, ready to be sold. "No one offers me a fair price," cries the owner, "and if they go to an auction they may fetch only a few shillings each." This is true. Mezzotints and line engravings are to be bought occasionally for little enough by the intelligent person who keeps his eyes open, makes up his mind not to expect too much in the shape of uncut margins and rare unlettered proofs, and cares nothing for fashion, that capricious jade. Even a bad bargain will "neither make you nor break you," as Mrs. Crupp would say, and the loss of a guinea or two is nothing compared to the gain in experience, and the pleasure of collecting.

Leave the walls bare rather than hang rubbish, or the mixture of water-colour drawings, etchings, an occasional engraving, and a small oil picture which so many arrange round draped looking-glasses and painted bookshelves. All these things are confusing and inharmonious. If it be considered necessary to cover the walls half-a-dozen autotypes of some of the Old Masters should be sufficient until such time as the engravings are bought; then the autotypes could hang in the hall. They are wonderful reproductions, but partake too much of the nature of photographs for one to be content with them in a sitting-room as permanent decoration.

To me the usual dining-room with its sombre paint and dingy tones in draperies and wall-hangings is a mistake. Drawing-rooms that are too light one grows tired of, but here, where so little time is spent, everything should be as bright as possible. Of course, panellings of mahogany, cedarwood, or oak are delightful. They have a character of their own, and the word dingy could never be applied to them. I mean only to call in question the wisdom of colouring very dark a room in which one eats one's meals: of hanging tapestry, or a tapestry paper that has a brownish nondescript design, and finishing the decorations with curtains of dull green or dark red.

First, I would panel the dining-room (Sketch 2) with pine, painted ivory. Then I would sink in the walls two or three pictures, and for them, if one is not fortunate enough to inherit anything good, one must wait and plan. Perhaps copies by a clever young student of some of the National Gallery portraits would serve the ordinary householder, at all events at first. Do you remember Mr. Loftie tells of a friend, not rich, who bought a Reynolds by saving and contriving? A Reynolds, worth waiting for indeed, cannot be found every day, and when found is not for the general as a rule; but if Mr. Loftie's friend succeeds, why not you? It is a mistake to have no ambition. "Choose what you will have, and pay for it," is a ce, blue and white Dutch tiles, cheap well. Some of the prettiest I have of the City, ornamenting the kitchen of a merchant two hundred years ago riding on clumsy Flanders horses, idly skating, prim tulips stiff among those blue pictures shining under the merchant's spits and jacks. But old tiles are not difficult to buy, and modern ones, costing a few pence each, are often quaintly effective, and being unpretentious, are to be recommended.

I would cover the chairs with a red and gold stamped leather, a red such as the old Italians used in their pictures; and the curtains should be of the same tone, in Venetian velvet embroidered a little with gold. Over the fireplace is a good position for a convex looking-glass in a black and gold frame, and among the pieces of Nankin on the mantel-piece a pair of silver branched candlesticks should find a place.

With an ivory background nothing is better than Spanish mahogany. All must be simple, the chairs broad with fine backs (there are many excellent designs, copied or adapted from old ones), the table octagonal, the sideboard serpentine with a brass rail and candelabra. This last, an important piece of furniture, must be made in proportion to the room, neither too large nor too small.

Beyond these things, a serving table (here I give you a sketch of an old one picked up in Kent) and a tall grandfather clock, there is need of nothing more in an eating parlour, to adopt the phraseology of the last century. Bookcases, writing tables, sofas, are out of place. There should be an air of space which cannot be attained if the room is crowded with unnecessary pieces.

On linen and silver, glass and china, chapters could be written. All these things are important, but the most important is linen, I think. It is a pity the art of spinning has almost gone, and that the few who have revived it turn the wheel so seldom and to so little account. There is a sentiment about homespun linen, though the texture may not be fine and the pattern may be queer, which is never inspired by an "art" antimacassar, by poker-work, or by painted pottery. These cloths are seldom seen now (I can count on the fingers of one hand the housewives I know who have them still), but the tables they cover gain a distinction from the old stuff, even if it be rather coarse and the borders are darned.

. . . . Last night, under my plate, spies bringing grapes from the Promised Land were woven; my neighbour's share of the cloth was the same as mine, only the position of the figures was reversed. I promise you in a house which guards its heirlooms so carefully each bit of silver is as a rule worth studying, and one finds the china come into the family from Etruria or Worcester a hundred years ago.

But if light tones are fittest in a dining room, dark tones are best in a library, where subdued colours seem more in harmony than bright ones. The high dado and all woodwork here (Sketch 3) must be in oak, and if old oak is used so much the better. The rest of the walls, those small portions not filled with bookcases, could be hung with stamped leather, a gold design on an indigo blue ground. The books, it goes without saying, must be glassed in, and the cases provided with air-holes.

Dirt, damp, heat, those destroyers of binding and leaves, can only in this way be defied. The volumes may be of little commercial value; there may be few first edition or tall copies on the shelves; still one's possessions are precious for this reason or that, and must not be allowed to perish untimely for want of a little care.

Choose tables and chairs and bookcases of oak, solid and plain, not stained black and much carved, but brown, a little ornamented. The blue on the walls should be repeated in the hangings, coverings, and carpet. The latter must be of the thickest possible quality, so that footsteps do not sound in what should be the quietest room in the house. There is no need for any decoration beyond a few large jars and dishes of old English china, a small looking-glass in the space by the arch, a bust over the cases, and a statuette, say of the incomparable Venus of Milo, on a slender oak or marble column. For a few shillings—the Young Augustus, for instance, costs 6s.; the Louvre Venus, 3 feet high, costs 10/6—one can have from Brucciani early Italian and classic busts, and reduced copies of the finest statues in the world. When washed with a waxed preparation they are fit for a palace. Nothing suits the calm of a library so well as the dignified grace of these beautiful faces.

In the little alcove a gayer note can be struck. Here the leather should be all gold and the hangings and coverings of yellow damask. One of Mr. Collie's reproductions of modern sculpture would look well in a niche above the dado; a good etching must find a place; and the looking-glass should be in such a position that it reflects the mantel-piece (facing the alcove and not shown in the Sketch), the great sofa by the side of the fire, the winged chairs and leather screen. There is art in the management of glass. As necessary as water in a landscape, it produces charming effects if deftly used; remember, for instance, the vista in an angle in King William's writing cabinet in Hampton Court.

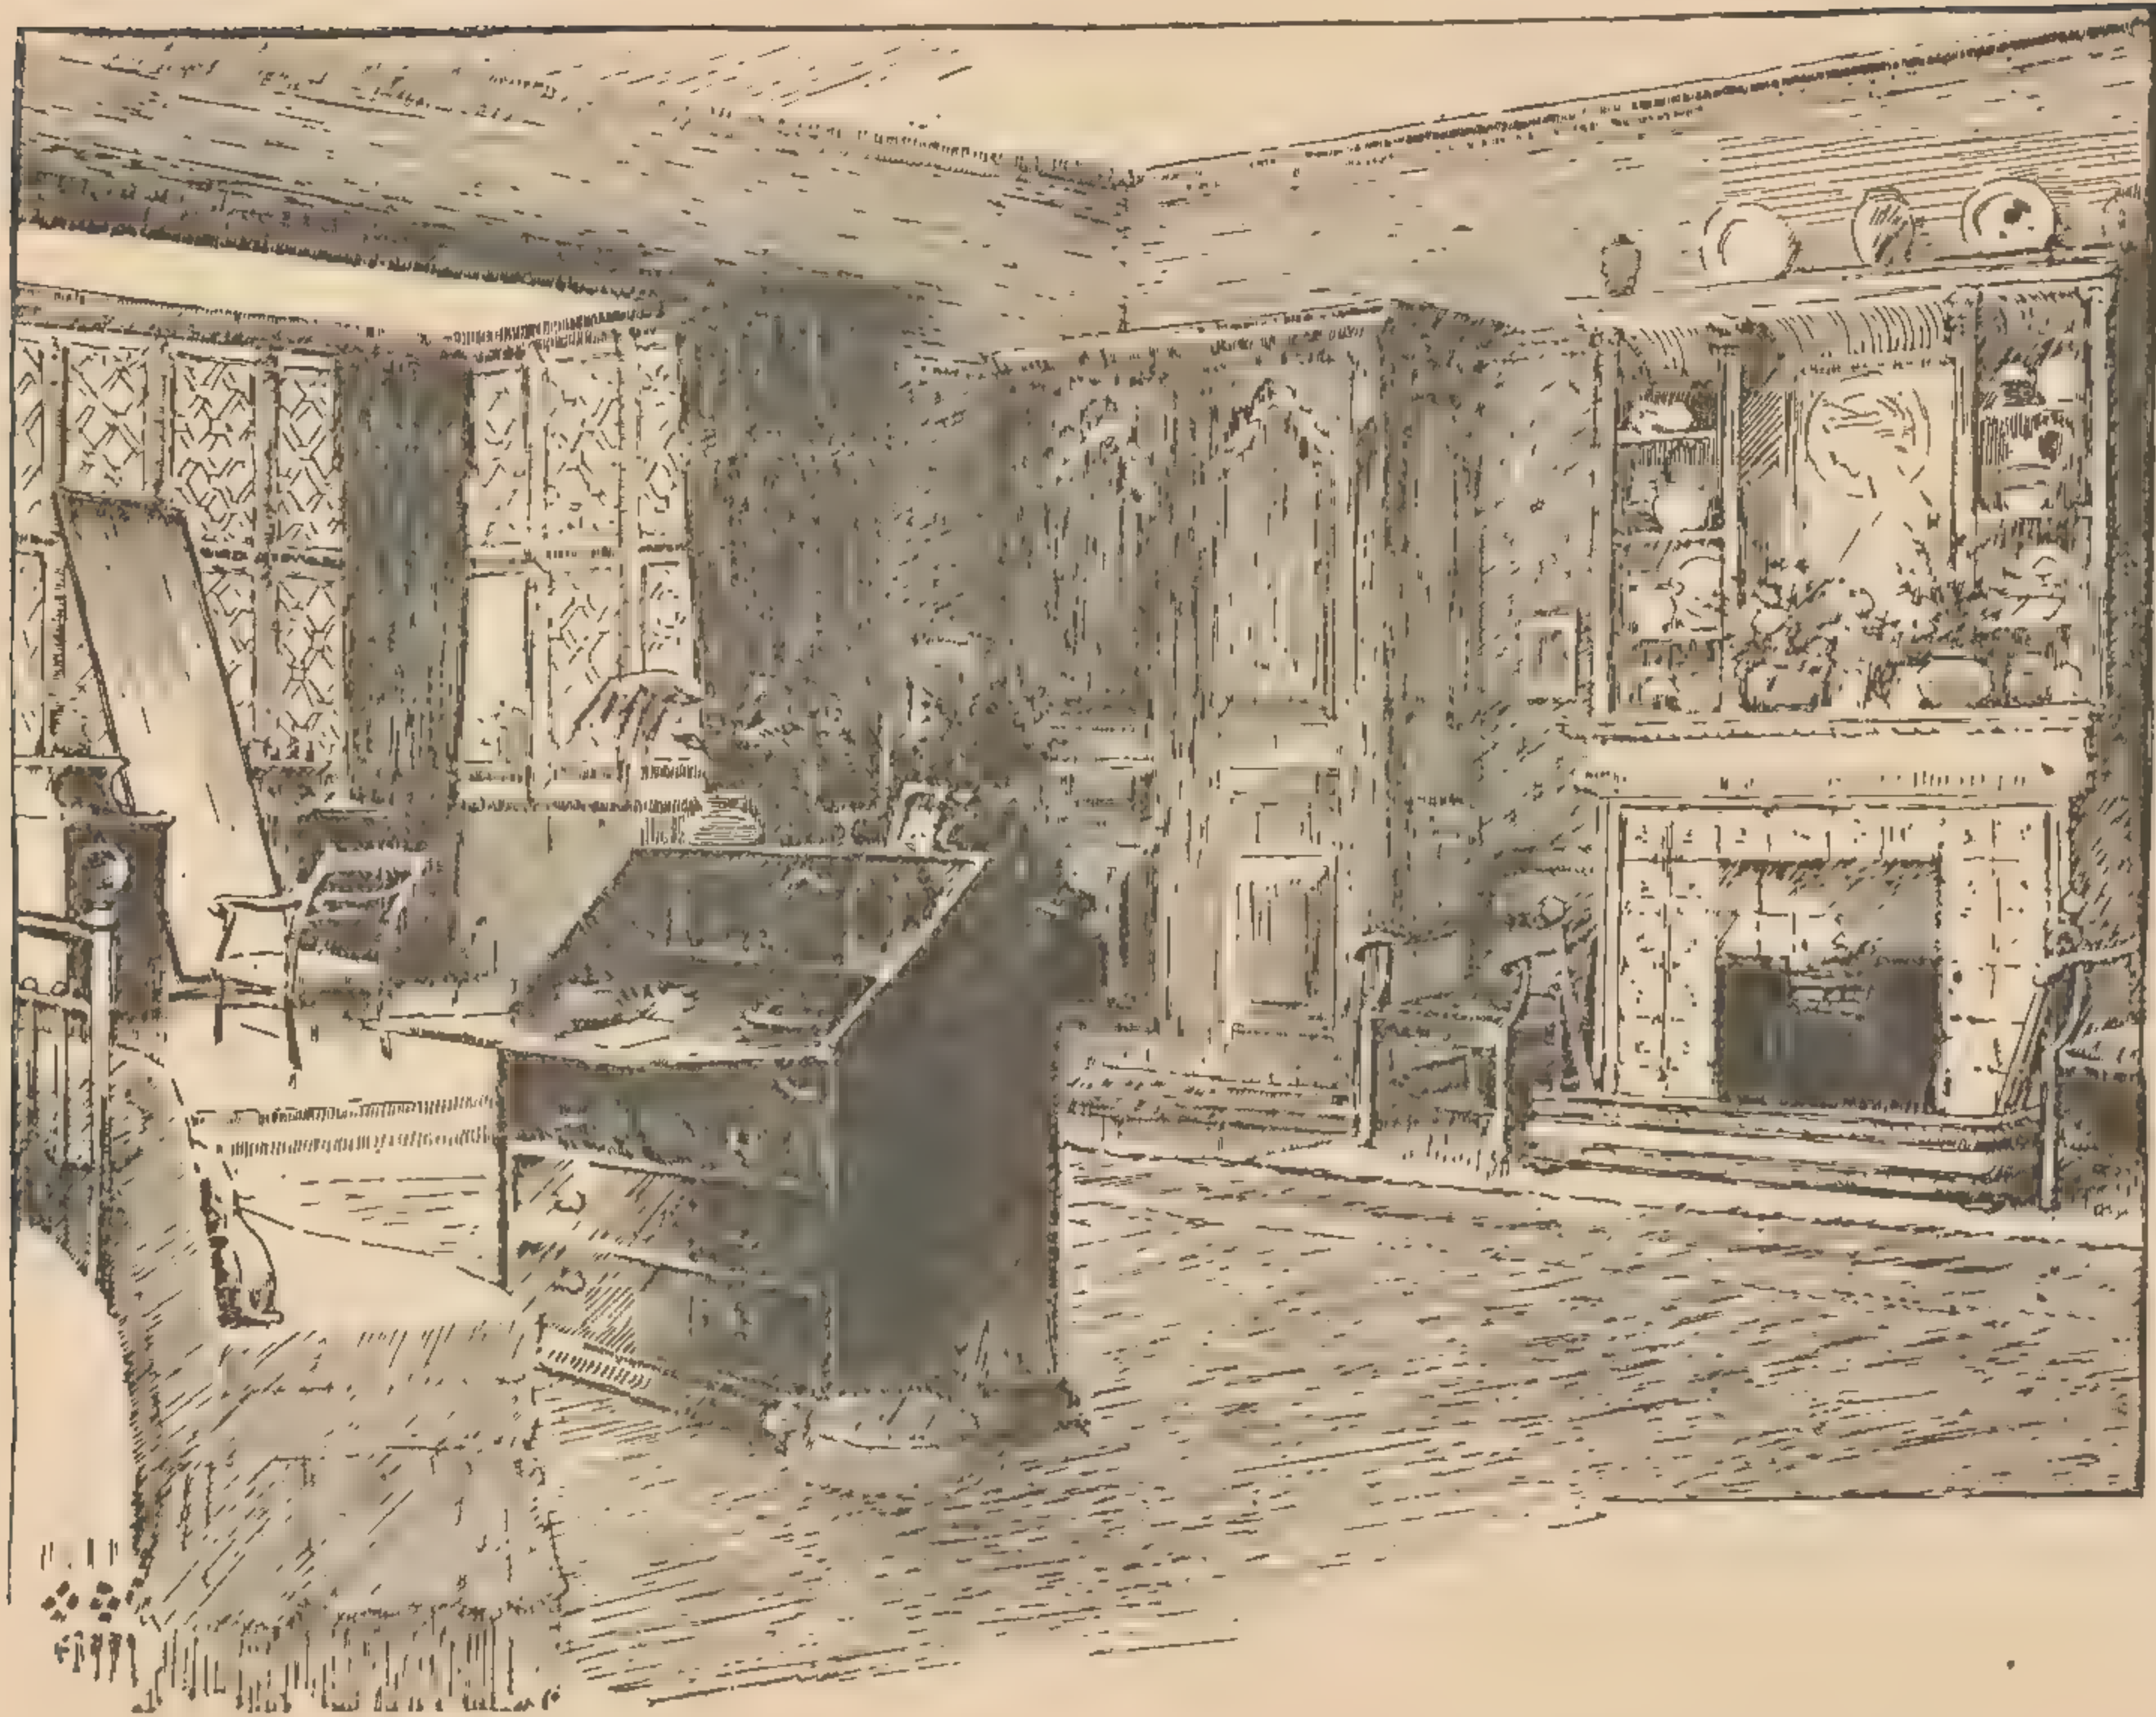

One word more. A certain sum should be rigorously set aside every year to enable one to add to the store of books. Though perhaps it is as well not to be too supercilious as regards modern literature, considering the existence of Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Kipling, and a score of others, it is more judicious to invest one's money in writers who have gained the approbation of generations rather than in the authors of to-day. Read them by all means, but send for them to Mudie. Read everything, buy nothing you do not wish to read twice.

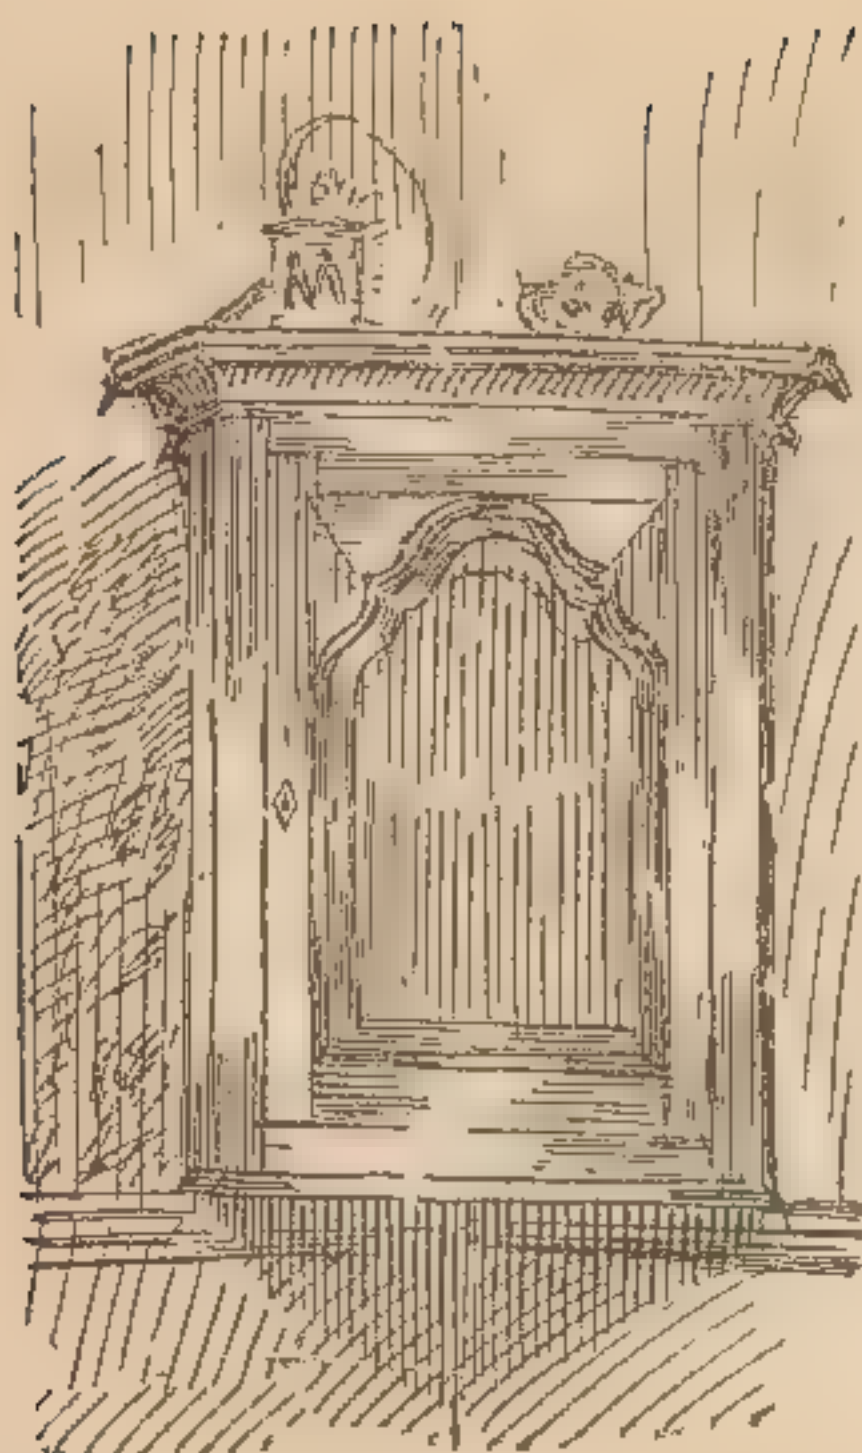

Do you remember in "Wives and Daughters" how indignant was Miss Browning at the notion of writing tables and sofas in bedrooms? It is rare to go into rooms now-a-days that have not these luxuries and are more luxurious still very often, in the shape of a sitting-room attached. Miss Browning would open her shrewd eyes at many things common enough in middle-class families which in her time were confined to the rich. Bare floors and walls and scanty furniture have disappeared, and to-day, as a matter of course, there is every comfort the most exacting guest could wish.

In this room (Sketch 4) the woodwork is painted a dark green; there hangs a cornflower-blue paper, the pattern printed on an ivory ground; above, a frieze of yellow and ivory. The curtains and coverings are in plain blue corduroy, the same tone as the paper. The floor is enamelled ivory for eighteen inches and there is a green carpet conventional in design. All the furniture is of oak, stained dull green. Over the mantel-piece is sunk Donatello's "St. Cecilia" in slight relief. Cups and bowls of Old English china of every colour are on the shelves and on the mantel-piece. On the right of the fireplace is a sofa, and a bookcase stands against the wall. The tiles are of cornflower-blue, the grate one of those useful hobs which have never been out of fashion.

Above all things it is desirable to choose for a bed room a paper that is unobtrusive in design and of a cheerful colour. Those covered with flowers are trying to one's nerves, and should never be used except as a frieze to some filling which is perfectly plain. The bed, of brass and as simple as possible, must be out of a draught; the dressing-table in a good light; the wardrobes large and roomy; the sofa of the lounging order not admissible in sitting rooms, and the writing table of the bureau shape, the best I think and most sensible of any.

And it is as well not to buy cheap furniture, or it will be found that the drawers do not open properly, the doors do not shut, the locks do not turn, beside other signs of bad cabinet-making. It is false economy to waste money in this fashion, a false economy in which only the unthrifty and careless can afford to indulge.

Does that vast number exist no longer to whom all manner of shams appealed: who filled their houses with worthless books and pictures, with ill-made chairs and tables, who, with no feeling for beauty in any form, chose instinctively what was unfit? Hopeful people declare ignorance to be now in the minority; hopeful people say that on the verdict of the majority one can rely. If this were so it is difficult to account for certain successes, certain failures, you and I have in our mind. If this were so, charming rooms would be the rule, and not the exception, which they are still, at the end of the Nineteenth Century.

I suppose by what one sees it is difficult to remember that tasteless ornamentation is worse than none at all; that it is better to buy well-made simple furniture, rather than furniture labelled "Artistic," a word which has almost lost its meaning from being used out of season. And I am sure, by what one sees, that the proverb I have taken as a motto for this little pamphlet; a proverb I have written on the first page, and shall write on the last, is an eternal truth:—

DRAWING ROOM FURNITURE.

OETZMANN & CO. have long made it their study to combine Elegance of Design with Soundness of Construction, an important feature too often lost sight of in the present demand for Fancy Furniture.

DRAWING ROOM SUITES.

OETZMANN & CO. have always on view in their Show Rooms an immense variety of Drawing Room Suites, ranging in price from £5 15s. 0d. to 50 Guineas. It is impossible to represent more than a very small proportion of the stock in a catalogue, however large, nor do illustrations, however well executed, convey any adequate idea of the richness and variety of the materials in which the Suites are covered; therefore, whenever practicable, a personal visit of inspection is respectfully solicited, but where this is inconvenient OETZMANN'S POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT will be found advantageous.

FRENCH FURNITURE.

Furniture in Louis XIV., Louis XV., Louis XVI., and the Empire periods. Buying, as they do, direct from the actual manufacturers in Paris, OETZMANN & Co. are enabled to offer French Furniture at the lowest possible prices consistent with good workmanship.

OETZMANN & CO. make a speciality of GENUINE ANTIQUE FRENCH FURNITURE, and have always many rare and beautiful specimens for sale at prices considerably below those usually charged.

OETZMANN & CO. will be pleased to submit special designs and estimates to customers residing at a distance, and, if desired, will send an experienced representative, free of charge, to take instructions and advise as to total or partial refurnishing.

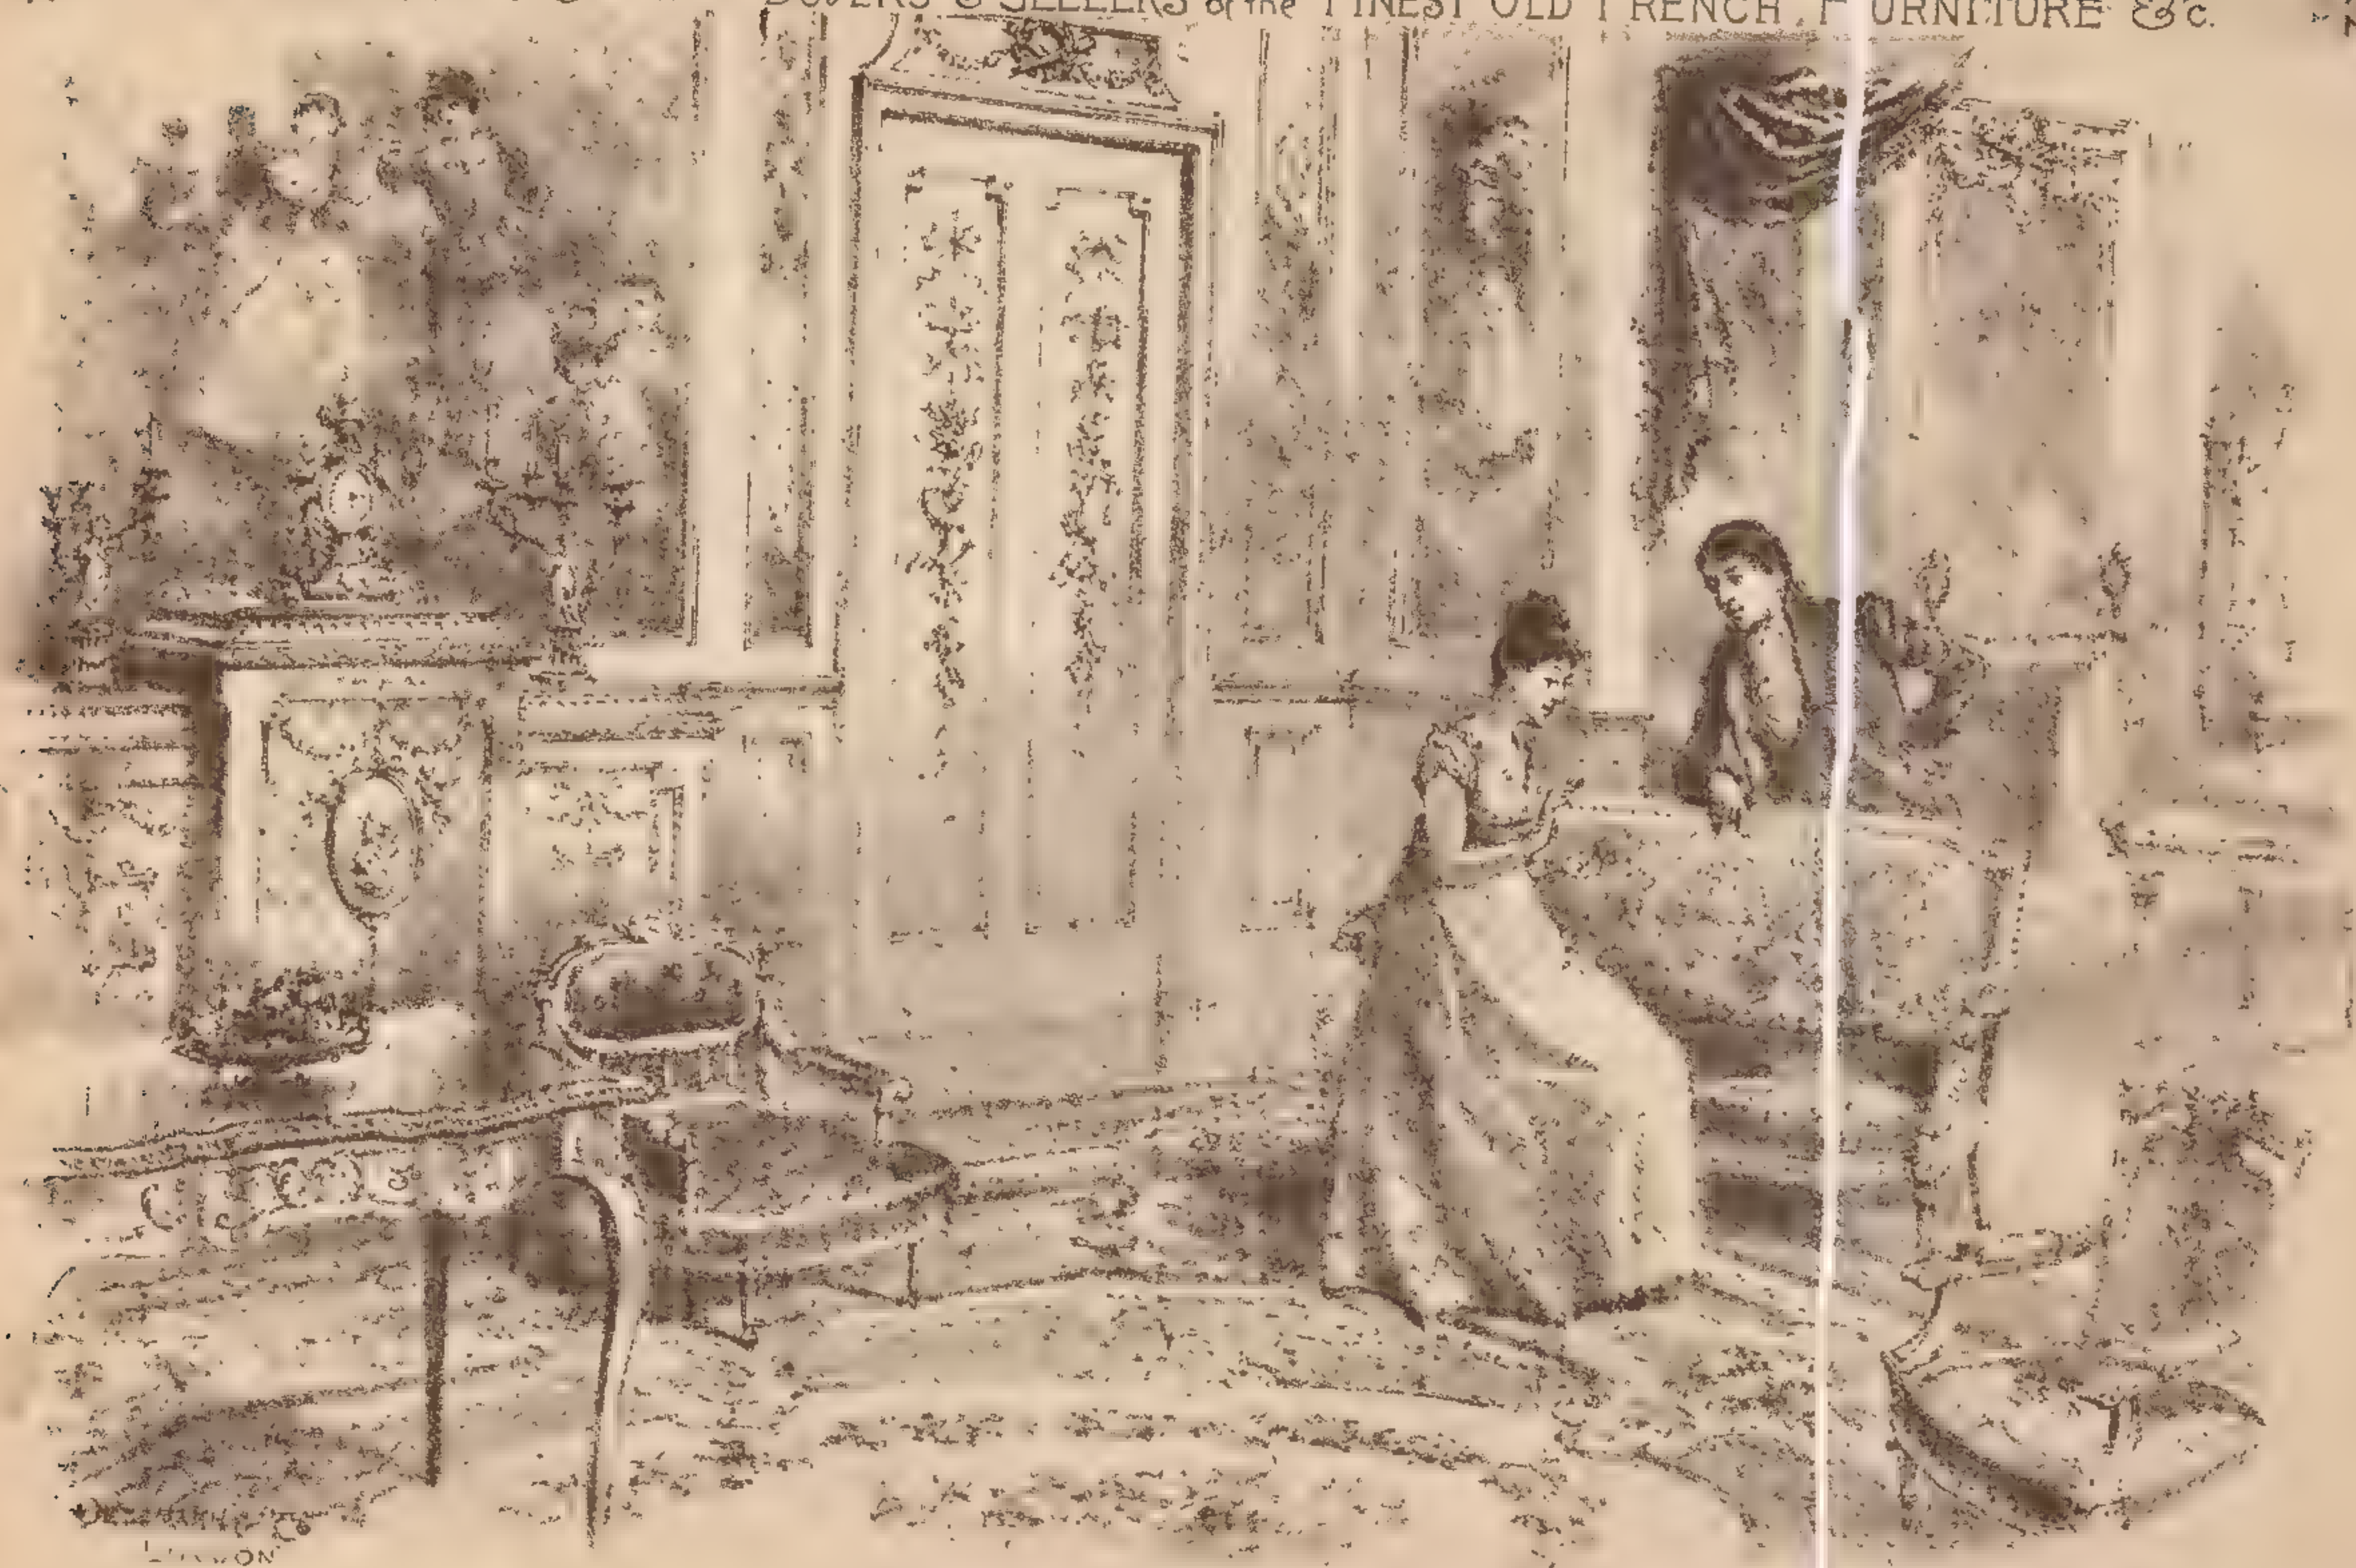

Fittings designed to suit all styles of rooms. Easy and High Seats at reduced prices. Plushes and other draperies in the newest designs.
Sketches and Estimates on application.

State Performance of "La Locandiera" (The Hostess)

BY COMMAND OF

H. M. the QUEEN, at WINDSOR CASTLE, 18th MAY, 1894.

THE STAGE FURNISHED BY OETZMANN & CO.

"The miniature stage erected with so much skill, and decorated with such unimpeachable taste, was the work of Messrs. OETZMANN & Co., of Hampstead Road."—LADY'S PICTORIAL 16th June, 1894.

CONDITIONS UPON WHICH GOODS ARE SENT CARRIAGE PAID.

OETZMANN & CO. beg leave to state that all their prices are based upon the lowest possible margin of profit for free delivery in London and Suburbs only, which will not admit of their paying carriage of goods into the Country. No other system is equitable, and those firms who send goods carriage paid are compelled to charge a higher rate of profit to cover cost of carriage to long distances.

As the cost of carriage is very much exaggerated by provincial firms to account for their high prices, OETZMANN & CO. are prepared to deliver all prepaid orders of £100 to £150, including placing in position, laying carpets, fixing blinds, poles, &c., in England or Wales for £5, Scotland £10, Ireland £15. Larger quantities at slightly increased cost.

Special quotation will be given for Scotland and Ireland if delivered to nearest Railway Station only.

For amounts under £100, a special price will be quoted for delivering in Cases to the nearest Railway Station, or if desired, an estimate will be given to include placing in position, &c.

This will enable any intending purchaser to make a direct comparison with local firms, and they will find a saving of 10 to 20 per cent., besides having the benefit of a much larger selection and all the newest styles.

Hotels, Clubs, large Institutions, &c., are subject to special arrangements.

OIL AND WATER COLOUR PAINTINGS, ETCHINGS, CHROMOGRAPHS, &c.

OETZMANN & Co. have always a choice assortment of pictures, bronzes, statuettes, and various artistic furnishing items on sale in their show rooms. A corridor gallery, upwards of 80 feet long, has been added for the display of pictures.

OIL AND WATER COLOUR PAINTINGS by well-known English and foreign artists of acknowledged merit, consisting of Figures, Landscapes, Marine views, Cattle and various subjects, in handsome gilt frames appropriate to the pictures, prices 31.6, 42.-, 52.6, 63.-, 85.-, 105.- to 50 Guineas each. All the pictures are guaranteed to be by the artists named, and purchasers may rely upon their being bona fide value for the prices charged.

OLEOGRAPHS, or fac-similes of oil paintings after eminent artistes, have the appearance of being painted on canvas, same as an oil painting. The great advantage of Oleographs is their truthfulness to the original, whereby all the beauty and effect of a first class oil painting is obtained at a moderate cost. OETZMANN & Co. sell the best reproductions only, and at prices from 25 to 50 per cent. below those usually charged.

CHROMO-LITHOGRAPHY. By Chromo-lithography the most beautiful effect is obtained in producing fac-similes of the finest water colour drawings after the best modern artists, so as to render it difficult for the most experienced connoisseur to detect the fact of its not being the original drawing. The best English reproductions only sold; prices from 10/6 to 5 Guineas, suitably framed in oak, maple, or handsome gilt frames.

ENGRAVINGS AND ETCHINGS. OETZMANN & Co. can supply proofs and copies at from 10 to 50 per cent. below publishers' prices. Suitably framed in oak, maple or in handsome gilt frames.

PHOTOGRAVURE of celebrated pictures by the best modern artists. The productions of Goupil & Co., and others, are supplied at lowest cash prices.

FRAMING AND MOUNTING of pictures, gilding and regilding of frames, by skilled workmen and at most moderate prices.

OETZMANN & Co. will be pleased to send list and particulars of pictures to suit the special requirements of their customers. OETZMANN & Co. are frequently requested by customers residing at a distance inconvenient for a personal visit, to select suitable pictures on their behalf; persons so doing may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interest, together with the most artistic taste in the selection.

Particular attention has been paid to this Department to ensure the best materials and workmanship with all the latest improvements of construction. The Bedding is all manufactured on the premises and is warranted pure. The vast and continual increase of business in this Department is an encouraging evidence of satisfaction given, and the prices will be found below those usually charged for goods of equal quality. In comparing prices of Bedding and Bedroom Furniture with those of other Houses, it should be observed that Goods similarly described or presenting the same appearance in a sketch, may be very inferior in quality or workmanship, although requiring the practical knowledge of an expert to detect, and horse-hair varies in quality as much as from 5d. to 3s. per lb., therefore unless equal quality is supplied, a lower quotation is no real test of cheapness. OETZMANN & Co. have one of the largest and best assortments in the Kingdom to select from. Two more Show Rooms, each 228 feet long, have been added for the display of Bedsteads, Bedding and Bedroom Furniture of every class, fitted up ready for inspection.

SPRING MATTRESSES.

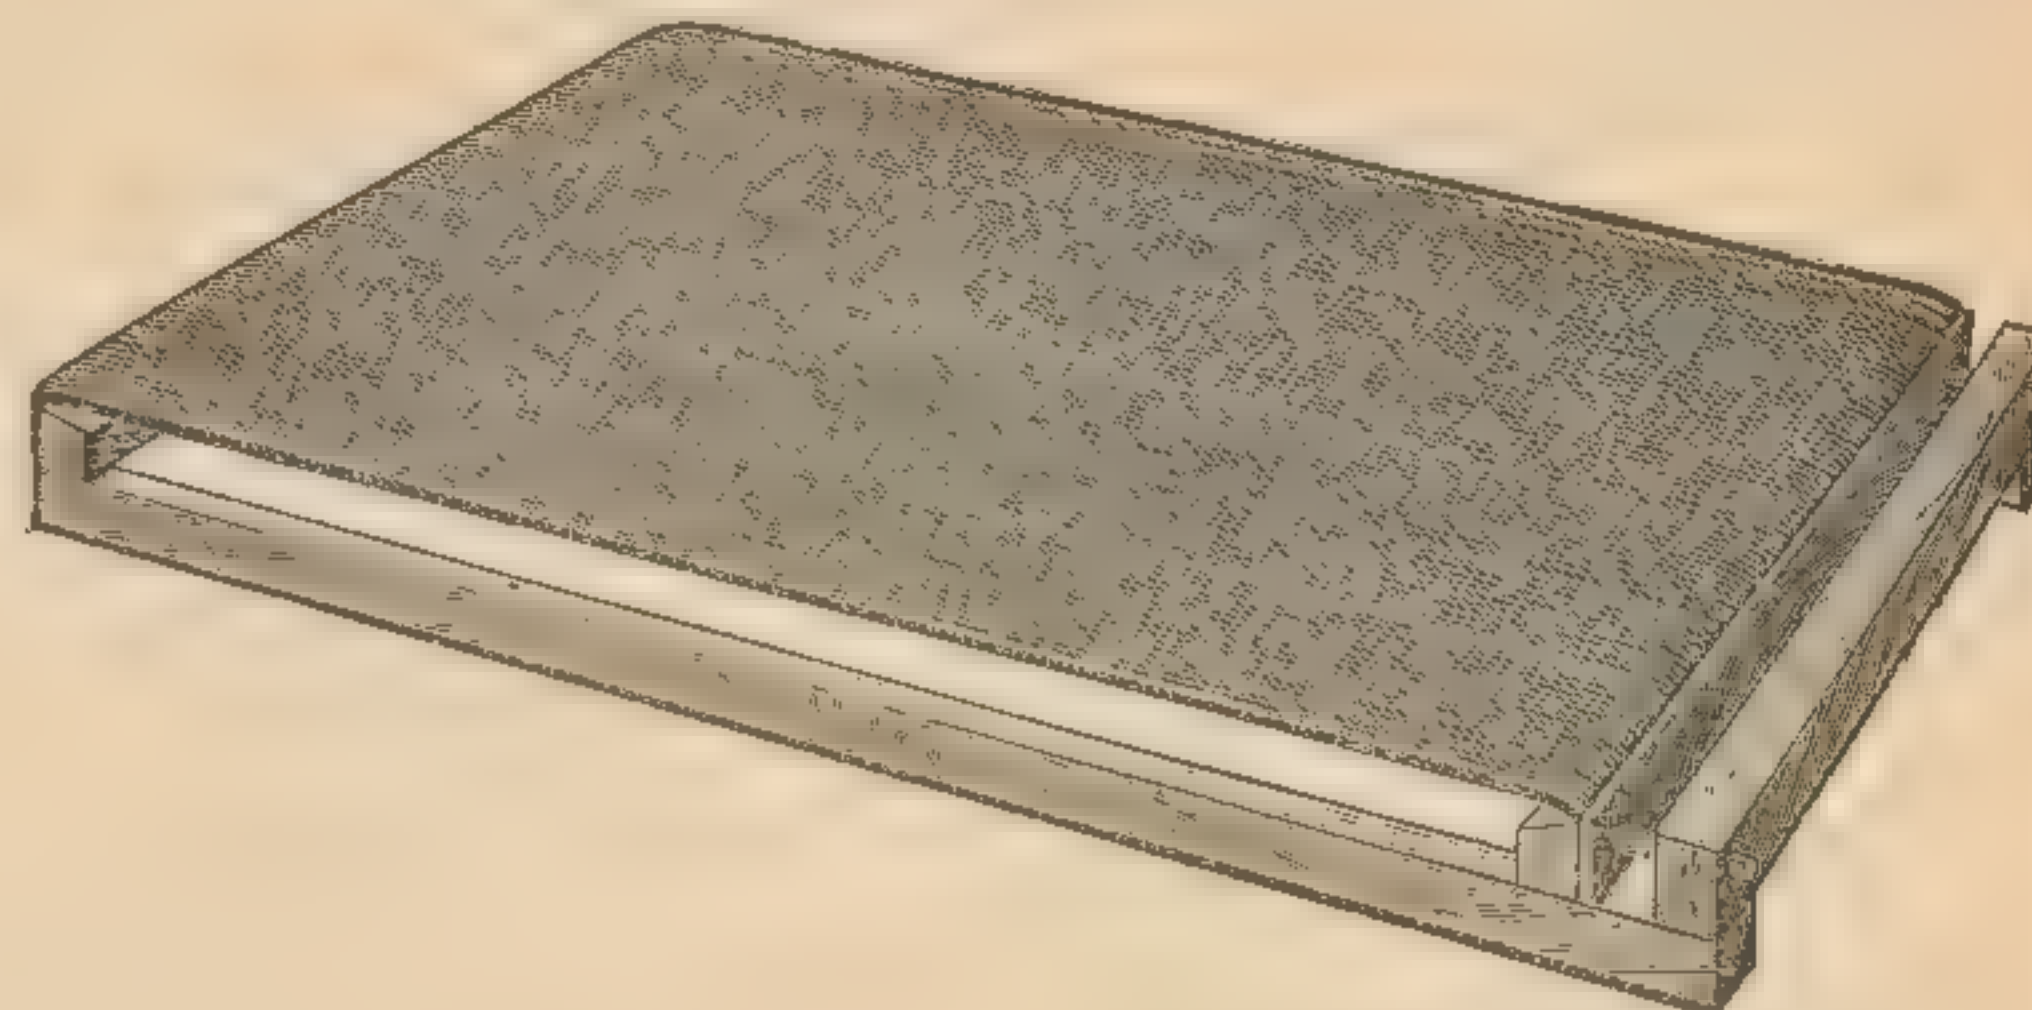

The enormous success that has attended the sale of these Mattresses is the greatest recommendation that can be advanced on their behalf. They are strongly recommended by the medical profession on hygienic grounds, combining all the most recent improvements of every other form of Mattress yet invented, the result of patient and careful experiment based upon scientific and practical knowledge acquired by long experience. They possess all the properties of portability, cleanliness, ease and comfort, with perfect noiselessness and remarkable elasticity, cheapness and durability. Simple in construction, they are easily and quickly put together or taken to pieces, and can be made hard or soft at pleasure. These eminent qualities recommend them for use in all private families, schools, hotels, &c. The attention of hotel proprietors and managers of public institutions is particularly requested to the combined advantages above-named.

BEDDING DEPARTMENT.

THIS Department, for which the Firm has long enjoyed a high reputation, continues to receive the most careful supervision. Purchasing for Cash the large quantities required for their business, enables OETZMANN & Co. to offer their customers special advantages in price and quality; the Bedding is all manufactured on the premises, particular attention being paid to the quality of the materials used, can therefore be warranted pure and free from dust; the entire process of manufacture can be seen by the Purchaser. The vast and continual increase of the business in this Department is an encouraging evidence of satisfaction given; two more Show Rooms, each 228 feet long, have been added for the display of Bedsteads, Bedding, and Bedroom Suites of every class, fitted up ready for inspection.

OETZMANN & CO.'S PATENT
PALLIO MATTRESS

Supersedes the old rigid palliase. The materials and stuffing are so arranged as to prevent sinking between the laths of bedstead without neutralising the tensive elasticity imparted to bedding by iron lath bottom of bedsteads, a benefit entirely lost in using the old rigid palliase: is more economical, combining as it does all the advantages of a palliase and mattress at the cost of one article.

OETZMANN & CO.'S PATENT "COMPENDIUM"
MATTRESS

Does not require any other mattress or palliase to be used with it, as it consists of an improved German spring mattress, surmounted by and combined with a French wool or hair mattress, and being made to fold, is more portable than the ordinary spring mattress. It is so constructed that the top mattress can easily be detached from the bottom mattress by domestics, for purposes of cleansing, airing, &c., thus obviating the existing objection to those kinds which, although having interstices between the two mattresses, are permanently attached. It is at once the healthiest, softest, most economical and complete bed extant.

Great care is taken in the manufacture of these mattresses, anti-corrosive springs, and all the other materials used being of the best quality only, and the workmanship of each mattress is guaranteed.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.

This department having always been a leading feature of the Establishment, OETZMANN & Co. have long enjoyed the command of the best markets in buying for cash, and the constantly increasing patronage received since their commencement in 1848, assures them of satisfaction given in the wear, great attention being paid to the quality as well as the price. The carpet being artistically considered the foundation of the room, it is of the utmost importance that it should be in good taste, otherwise, however well selected may be the other furnishings and decorations of the room, the carpet will entirely mar the pleasing effect. The stock is constantly replenished with the best new designs (all patterns or colorings that are not strictly in accordance with good taste being carefully excluded) and will be found one of the largest and best in London for selection. Another large Show Room has been added to this department extending to a depth of 200 feet.

Besides their immense stock of new designs, OETZMANN & Co. have a quantity of Carpets of various kinds, last year's patterns, which will be sold considerably below value.

In cases where the rooms are not already decorated it is desirable to select the Carpets before or at the same time as the wall decorations, curtains and furniture coverings. OETZMANN & Co.'s spacious Show Rooms admit of the Carpets, Wall Papers, Curtains and Furniture Coverings being all shown together, enabling the customer to see the general effect of the whole.

In Oriental Carpets and Rugs OETZMANN & Co. hold one of the largest and choicest assortments in the Kingdom to select from, for particulars please see pages 380 to 384.

PATTERNS SENT.—In all cases, wherever convenient, a personal visit of selection to the Show Rooms is preferable as affording a better opportunity of comparison and choice, but to those residing at a distance inconvenient for a personal visit, OETZMANN & Co. will be happy to forward patterns of carpets upon application, describing kind and style required. In cases where customers desire to avoid the expense of carriage for patterns, and wishing OETZMANN & Co. to make a selection on their behalf, they may rely upon strict attention to their wishes and interest in the selection, upon describing the furnishings, decorations and aspect of the room and prevailing colors desired in carpet; or by filling up a printed form which OETZMANN & Co. supply for this purpose. This course is generally found the most advisable, as the selection is in such case made in the customer's interest by a person of great experience and taste in furnishing, from a much larger assortment than could possibly be represented by any quantity of patterns sent out, besides the difficulty for customers of judging from patterns the general effect of a larger surface of the same; and the continual receipt of letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the taste displayed in the selection is a gratifying evidence of successful efforts to please.

OETZMANN & Co., importing direct themselves, thereby availing the usual intermediate profit charged by the Importers, are enabled, by the increased facilities of transport by railways and canals, and the largeness of their transactions in Turkey, Persian, and Indian Carpets, through their own Correspondents and Agents at the seat of manufacture, thereby commanding the best sources of Eastern supply, to secure the best quality that is produced and at prices that will be found to compare favourably with any other houses maintaining the same high standard of quality; and the large and constantly increasing trade which has resulted is an encouraging evidence of satisfaction given as to price and quality.

These Carpets are made under the close and immediate superintendence of Oetzmann & Co.'s Agents at the seat of manufacture, it will be seen that this rigid system of inspection precludes the possibility of an inferior or damaged article at any time finding its way into their stock. Each Carpet is warranted of the best quality and free from damage of any kind; the patterns and colorings are those most approved, and the exclusive use of the best Eastern dyes in the manufacture is guaranteed.

The increasing taste for Foreign Carpets has induced the production of inferior qualities, especially in Turkey Carpets, enabling the sellers to make low quotations, usually at so much per square yard; these should be avoided, as they are very unsatisfactory in the wear. It should always be borne in mind that Turkey Carpets vary in quality as greatly as our own home-made Carpets, therefore the price per yard is no criterion of cheapness. Oetzmann & Co., therefore, respectfully solicit an inspection of their stock. Oetzmann & Co. have also some of the Turkey Carpets in which the old original colorings, same as were in use about two centuries since, have been reproduced; these colorings, unlike the usual Turkey colors, are equally suitable for the Drawing Room as for the Dining Room or Library.

As the sizes in stock are constantly varying, a printed list of sizes would become obsolete soon after being issued, but upon application, stating size of room, or, which is preferable, giving a rough plan of the room (which need not be drawn to scale) with dimensions filled in, directions for which will be found page 407, Oetzmann & Co. will be happy to forward quotations and sizes of those in stock most suitable.

Underlays for Carpets.

It is very desirable that all Carpets should be underlaid with either Stout Paper, Paper Felt or Woollen Underfelt. The small additional outlay is well repaid by the great saving effected in the wear, and when Underfelt is used it gives a greater softness to the tread, protects the Carpet from any unevenness in the boards and can be used for any number of Carpets.

Underfelt about 50 inches wide, 1/- and 1/3 per yard.

Extra thick ditto „ „ specially recommended, 1/6 and 1/11 per yard.

Stout Paper 1½ yards wide, 2d. per yard.

Felt „ „ „ 5d. „ A lower quality can be supplied at 3d. per yard but is not recommended, the Stout Paper at 2d. being preferable.

OETZMANN & Co.'s Stout Paper Underfelt, soft and thick, protects Carpet from uneven floors, prevents draughts from rising, is moth-proof, adds softness to the tread and also adds greatly to the durability of the Carpet or Floor Cloth when laid under. Price 3½d. per square yard.

SHAPE OF BACK WHEN IN USE.

OETZMANN'S PATENT.

The Era, 28th June, says:—"The 'Oetzmann's Patent' is upholstered in plush, velvet, or any other similar material, with the ordinary tip-up seat; the standards or divisions between each seat being perpendicular, whilst the upholstered back has no hard foundation, but contains india-rubber as a basis, in the interior. It shapes itself to the curve of the back when the occupant reclines, and when leaning forward the padded back regains its original position, thus obviating the necessity of a curved back, which takes up two and a-half or three inches in each row of stalls. The economy of room in the stall area is obvious."

PATENT ADJUSTABLE.

The Era, 28th June, 1890, says:—"The 'Patent Adjustable' seat is upholstered in plush, velvet, or any other material that may be desired; it has the ordinary tip-up seat; the padded back is fixed with specially prepared metal ball joints, on india-rubber bed or foundation, so that it adjusts itself to every movement of the body, thereby securing greater comfort than with any other seat extant."

TABLE CUTLERY.

This Department has always had our careful supervision, great attention being paid to the quality and tempering of the steel, to ensure a keen edge; also to the handles being securely fastened. Each knife bears our name, and can be confidently recommended. Owing to the great advance in the price of Ivory, we have introduced a very close imitation for the lower qualities under the name of Ivorine, which is warranted to wear well, but we recommend real Ivory where the means admit of it.

ORDERS PER POST receive prompt and careful attention in the selection, or if desired samples can be sent post free at 3d., 6d., 9d. and 1s. extra.

ELECTRO SILVER PLATE, SPOONS, FORKS, &c.

For which this Establishment has long been celebrated, is the best substitute for Silver yet discovered, being the best hard Nickel Silver coated with Sterling Silver by Messrs. ELKINGTON'S Patent Process, has stood the test of many years' wear, cleans the same as Silver, cannot be distinguished from solid Silver, and is not surpassed at higher prices.

OETZMANN & Co. would strongly advise against the purchase of any but the best quality Electro Silver Plate, as inferior qualities are very unsatisfactory in the wear. The following are the best quality Electro Silver Plate that is manufactured, and the prices are the lowest possible at which the best quality can be supplied; each piece bears our name and can be confidently recommended. A lower quality at 17s. per doz. for Table Spoons and Forks, 13s. 6d. Dessert ditto, and 8s. 6d. for Tea Spoons can be supplied if desired, but they do not bear OETZMANN & Co.'s name, and they cannot recommend them for wear.

OETZMANN'S PATENT ELECTRO SILVER PLATING.

IT is a well-established fact that all Electro Plated Articles after a certain amount of use will be found to have the silver worn off in certain parts, and on that account require re-plating, notwithstanding that the greater portion of the surface is still in good condition.

By OETZMANN'S PATENT process of manufacture this very great disadvantage has now been entirely overcome, and Spoons, Forks, &c., are Electro Plated on the parts most subjected to wear and friction with about three times the usual quantity of silver, whilst on the parts subjected to least wear there is as much silver deposited as on Electro Silver Plate usually known as "A" and "A1" quality. OETZMANN'S PATENT Electro Silver Plate thus surpasses all other substitutes for solid silver yet discovered, and for a slightly increased price it is now possible to procure Electro Silver Plate with three times the usual durability.

The following prices will be found to compare very favourably with those usually charged by Ironmongers, Silversmiths and others for ordinary "A" or "A1" quality. The true economy in the purchase of these patented goods will strongly recommend itself to all.

Unfinished samples, illustrating the process and demonstrating the additional thicknesses of silver, may always be seen in OETZMANN & Co.'s Electro Plate Department.

PATENTEES AND SOLE VENDORS: OETZMANN & CO.

EXTRACTS FROM PRESS OPINIONS ON OETZMANN'S PATENT ELECTRO SILVER PLATING.

"ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," 3rd May, 1890, says:—

"How many ladies—and gentlemen too for that matter—complain that their silver plated spoons and forks are shabby simply because one or two small parts that receive an undue amount of wear when in use or by rubbing together when in the plate-basket are bare and show the metal on which they are plated? This great disadvantage has now been overcome by OETZMANN'S patent silver plating, by which unique method those parts receive about three times the usual amount of silver and the other parts the quantity deposited on the best quality of other makers. This important invention should be a great boon to all, combined as it is with moderate cost. Messrs. OETZMANN, of Hampstead Road, London, the sole vendors and patentees, are to be congratulated on a most excellent invention, which possesses the great advantage over solid silver that when engraved it is not likely to be stolen, while the wear is very nearly equal and the cost infinitely less."

"ILLUSTRATED SPORTING AND DRAMATIC NEWS," 21st September, 1889, says:—

"Messrs. OETZMANN & Co. have patented a novelty in electro plating which is worthy of attention. Ordinarily, after more or less of use, the foundation metal in forks, spoons and similar articles shows through—the two points at which they come into contact with the table, &c., being especially subject to this result of friction. The new process of Messrs. OETZMANN provides for a threefold coating of silver at these weak parts."

"CASSELL'S MAGAZINE," May, 1890, says:—

"There is nothing unusual either in the appearance of my plated spoons and forks; I have the satisfaction of knowing that extra quantities of silver are deposited on the parts most liable to wear, making it about four times the ordinary durability. Both these are patent and can be procured only from one firm (OETZMANN & Co.)."

"ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE," 3rd May, 1890, says:—

"Messrs. OETZMANN, the well known furnishers, have patented an improvement in silver plate which will be useful to messes. By an ingenious arrangement the plating is strengthened in those portions which are most liable to wear and tear."

"CITY PRESS," 25th April, 1890, says:—

"An important advance which has been recently made in the art of electro silver plating will, there is no doubt, do much to foster domestic economy. The useful improvement to which we refer is known as 'OETZMANN'S patent plating' which possesses this great desideratum, that the forks and spoons plated by this process are strengthened at their most vulnerable parts with about treble the deposit of silver, thus insuring immensely increased wear at slightly additional cost. For those commencing housekeeping, or rather for all those who desire to procure those articles that are eventually the cheapest, we can confidently recommend OETZMANN'S patent electro silver plate, which can only be obtained of the old-established firm of house furnishers in Hampstead Road, whose name alone should be a guarantee of excellence."

"LADY'S PICTORIAL," 3rd May, 1890, says:—

"A new invention just patented by Messrs. OETZMANN & Co., the well known firm in Hampstead Road, will appeal strongly to economical and careful housewives. It has often been found a serious matter that silver forks and spoons will wear at the back and at the extremity of the handle, where they touch the table and rub against each other in the plate-basket. This is cleverly guarded against by Messrs. OETZMANN'S new invention, more silver being put into the portions so subjected to extra wear, just as the knees of children's stockings are made triply thick at the knee. The same idea applies to plating, indeed is more effective in this way, as electro once worn reveals its origin in a flagrant and unmistakable way. The cost at the start is a little more than usual, but the economy in the end is great, so much so that the proprietors of large establishments will have much reason to be grateful to Messrs. OETZMANN for its production."

"MORNING ADVERTISER," 3rd May, 1890, says:—

"Electro plated goods, like everything else in a greater or less degree, suffer deterioration by use. Our garments wear in certain places more quickly than in others, and in consequence they must be either patched or cast aside. In regard to silver plate, however, Messrs. OETZMANN have patented and adopted a better method, by which the patching is done beforehand, namely, at the time of the manufacture of the article; that is, those parts of spoons, forks and tongs and similar articles which are most subject to attrition receive a treble coat of silver, by which their durability, or rather the period of their respectability, is proportionately extended. The advantage and economy which this system of electro silver plating offers are obvious."

"COUNTY GENTLEMAN," 14th December, 1889, says:—

"Messrs. OETZMANN, the well known firm in the Hampstead Road, have patented a new process of electro plating, which will be hailed with the liveliest pleasure by all good housewives. Complaints are often made that even when high prices have been paid for electro plated goods certain portions of the surface sooner or later lose their silver covering. By a simple and ingenious device Messrs. OETZMANN have been able to remove this very serious drawback to the use of electro plated goods. The new patent process strengthens, so to speak, the chain in its weakest links by applying three times the usual quantity of silver to the parts most exposed to wear and friction. The spoons, forks, ladles, &c., which have been treated by the OETZMANN process are thus rendered uniformly durable over the whole of their surface. The price of the newly patented articles shows only a small advance on that of the electro plate now commonly in use. The increased cost is, in fact, quite inconsiderable in comparison with the ultimate advantage to be gained from the use of articles which will practically 'last for ever.'"

"ARCHITECT," 25th April, 1890, says:—

"One of the most useful inventions of modern times is OETZMANN'S patent method of silver plating. By this excellent process, spoons, forks, &c., are coated with about three times the thickness of silver on the parts most subject to wear, thus securing, at a comparatively small increase of expense, about three times the usual wear of the ordinary electro silver plate. Messrs. OETZMANN, of Hampstead Road, London, the well known house, hotel and club furnishers, are the inventors and sole vendors of this very distinct improvement."

"THE CATERER," 15th October, 1889, says:—

"Messrs. OETZMANN'S patent electro silver plate claims to surpass all other substitutes for solid silver yet discovered. It is matter of common knowledge with hotel men and restaurant-keepers that electro plated articles, after being in use for a comparatively short time, become denuded of their silver coating in those parts most exposed to wear. Needless to say the contrast between the worn and well-conditioned surfaces renders plated ware, especially spoons and forks, unfit for table use until they have undergone a second process of silvering. The incidental disadvantage is two-fold, inconvenience on the one hand and extra expense on the other. By Messrs. OETZMANN'S method of silvering this disadvantage is obviated. Their spoons, forks, &c., are plated with a triple coating of silver on the parts most subjected to friction, whilst on the other parts less liable to wear an extra quantity of silver is likewise deposited. Caterers generally will, no doubt, appreciate the economy of money and material resulting from Messrs. OETZMANN'S improvement. Hotel people don't want requisites of any kind that are unequal to the exceptional wear and tear of the dining-room or refreshment-bar. They will find that although the improved plate is slightly dearer in first cost, it is, owing to greater durability, cheaper in the long run than ordinary goods of a similar class."

"SYLVIA'S HOME JOURNAL," December, 1889, says:—

"Those of us who have not inherited vast stores of family plate, and are not able to buy everything we require in solid silver, may think ourselves fortunate in the fact of having electro plated articles that look every bit as well as those of more intrinsic value. But it is a known trouble with regard to plated things that after a certain amount of use the silver wears off in certain parts causing a mean appearance altogether, although the greater portion of the surface may be still in good condition. OETZMANN'S patent process of manufacture has now obviated this very great disadvantage."

"UNITED SERVICE GAZETTE," 3rd May, 1890, says:—

"Mess presidents and others know only too well how frequently electro plated articles have to be discarded or re-plated in consequence of the silver having become worn off over a comparatively small portion of their surface. An ingenious process has just been patented by which the difficulty of varying the thickness of the coating of silver in plated spoons, forks and other articles whose surface is subjected to uneven wear has been overcome, and these can now, under the name of OETZMANN'S patent electro silver plating, be obtained at a very slight additional cost, having a treble thickness of silver on those parts most subject to wear, while on the remaining parts the usual thickness of silver is deposited. As this electro plate has three times the usual durability, it is obviously true economy to purchase it in preference to what is ordinarily sold."

OETZMANN'S PATENT DINNER SERVICES.

The Vegetable Dishes and Tureens of these Services are made on OETZMANN'S patented principle, by which the covers when tilted back are held in the position shown in the illustrations. The usual difficulty of knowing where to place the cover is thus avoided, and the drippings from the condensation cannot soil the table cloth. One of the special features of this invention is, that the whole is made in pottery, there is no hinge or metal fitting of any description, and therefore the covers are as easily removed for cleansing, &c., as in the ordinary kinds.

OETZMANN'S NEW REGISTERED DESIGN.

THE "VICTORIA" (MINTON'S CHINA).

NOTE.—It is impossible to represent the beautiful details of the design in illustrations on so small a scale.

"THE STOCK EXCHANGE" says:—"One speciality is Tea and Breakfast Ware from Messrs. Oetzmann's special design which is registered and named the 'Victoria.' The design is after the style of the Italian Renaissance, the details of the composition being most carefully executed, and the general effect very much enhanced by a rich burnished gilding round the edges of the articles. These sets are manufactured for this firm exclusively at Minton's celebrated factory, and it is needless, therefore, to add that the style, quality and finish are beyond compare; at the same time the price is far more moderate than is often charged for inferior articles."—7th April, 1888.

OETZMANN'S PATENT FLOWER BOXES.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE WINDOW DECORATION EVER INTRODUCED.

PATTERN No. 1.

PATTERN No. 3.

This novel invention will doubtless supersede the old-fashioned Tile Boxes, as in addition to increased artistic effect, they possess the following advantages:—

FORMED COMPLETELY OF ART POTTERY, there is no Zinc Frame to corrode. Being formed of separate interlocking Flower Pots and ornamental connections, no special measuring or fixing is necessary, as any required length can be obtained by simply interlocking sufficient Flower Pots. Can be instantly altered to suit any window, whereas Zinc Tile Boxes are useless except for the particular windows to which they were fitted. Can at any time be detached and used as single Pots for indoor decoration, &c. Will fit any shaped bay or circular fronted windows—a very important point. Any single piece replaceable at a trifling cost. Considerably less expensive than Tile Boxes.

SILICATED CARBON FILTERS.

There is no subject which has received a larger amount of attention during the last few years than the purity of our drinking water, and no proposition has ever been more clearly established than that the constant use of an impure water for drinking or cooking, invariably involves a serious risk to health and life. Whatever the source of supply may be, whether a running stream, a lake, or a well, it is always more or less liable to contamination, and there is no doubt but that typhoid or enteric fever is most commonly conveyed into the system by the use of impure water, and the Medical Inspectors appointed by the Privy Council are singularly unanimous on this point. The only practicable and available safeguard against this subtle form of disease is Domestic Filtration of all water used for drinking or cooking. A good and efficient filter should be simple in construction, the filtering medium should be in a solid form, so that it can easily be cleansed by scrubbing, and above all things it should contain no sponge or other substance liable to become decomposed, or to harbour animalculæ. All these conditions are fulfilled in the Silicated Carbon Filters, and the highest medical and scientific authorities concur as to the remarkable property possessed by these filters in depriving water of all organic and other impurities.

Heads of families, proprietors of schools, and householders generally, cannot be too strongly impressed with this fact, that it is their interest as well as their duty to adopt such means as will ensure a reasonable amount of purity in the water used in their houses, if they wish to avoid the fatal consequences too often resulting from impure water. No house should be considered as thoroughly furnished unless it is supplied with proper filters.

The above can be supplied with handles at 1/- each extra.

Each time that the Filter is filled, the air under the Aerator cover is forced in the direction shown by the arrows through the Silicated Carbon block, so that the water is aerated and filtered simultaneously, rendering it palatable even after boiling. The block can be instantly removed, leaving the whole of the Filter open for inspection and cleansing.

For cleansing the Domestic Filter No. 27, when the lower chamber is full of water, invert the Filter over a sink or vessel, opening the tap to allow the filtered water to flow backwards through the filtering medium; this, if done at frequent intervals, will keep the Filter in good working order.

BRITISH & FOREIGN POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT.

ORDERS PER POST—LARGE OR SMALL—RECEIVE PROMPT ATTENTION.

THIS Catalogue is arranged with a view to facilitate the selection of suitable goods, so that, if desired, a house can be completely and judiciously furnished without the trouble of a personal visit, this being frequently accomplished with great satisfaction to customers.

Persons residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit of inspection would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection of goods to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interest in the selection, and the continual receipt of letters expressive of satisfaction with the goods sent, is a gratifying evidence of successful efforts to please, which have secured to them from the same customers a continuance of orders for General Furnishing Goods, with the same confidence as in dispatching their regular orders for grocery or other goods of a certain tariff value, and also their kind recommendation amongst friends. OETZMANN & Co. have reason to know that this book is carefully preserved and prized for this purpose by many thousands of households—British, Foreign, and Colonial.

OETZMANN & Co. originated this system some years since, feeling that there was a great want for some firm to whom persons residing at a distance could forward their orders for any articles required in the furnishing or replenishing of a house, with the certainty of such being selected with the same care as if they visited London themselves; and the result has proved they were right, this Department having increased rapidly, and to an extent hitherto unprecedented.

By the operation of the Parcels Post, many articles can be sent Post free to any part of the United Kingdom at from 3d. to 1s. extra.

Orders from Foreign Countries and the Colonies also receive the most careful attention. Persons residing abroad will find a great advantage in being supplied direct from the firm; and if any goods are required which OETZMANN & Co. do not themselves supply, they will procure them without extra charge, and in many instances are enabled to make some considerable concession in price. OETZMANN & Co. also undertake the same for those residing in the country wishing goods procured in London.

In ordering Goods it is advisable to give some little discretionary power, as it sometimes happens that OETZMANN & Co. are thus enabled to do better for their customer by sending an improved design or coloring, or better harmonizing with other furnishings, than if confined strictly to price and description given, otherwise they do not feel at liberty to vary from the order.

The goods are all very carefully packed by experienced packers, so that articles of the most fragile description, such as Glass Shades, Glass Epergnes, and the most delicate Porcelain may be sent to any part of the globe without damage.
